CAMP SUPPORTERS HOPE FOR RUN OFF

Rivers Chiefs Forecast Landslide Greater Than Victory Two Years Ago. By L. A. FARRELL,

Long accustomed to campaigns of strictly local or occasionally sectional interest, Georgia voters will go to the polls Wednesday with the political spotlight of the nation trained upon them for the first time in history. More than 435,000 citizens are eligible to march to the ballot box. They are to determine whether or not United States Senator George, Democratic in principle but independent in thought, is to survive the first warlike thrust of a purge to rid the Democratic party of its independents, a purge in which

Tommie, Bachelor Baboon, To Get Mate books written by "Aryan sutho possessing a Jewish mentality."

Zoo Officials To Brighten Life of Veteran (and Grumpy) Inmate.

By FRANK DRAKE.
Tommie, the sole baboon resident of the Grant Park zoo, has been a member of the Lonely Hearts club long enough.

During his 15 years of life Tommie has been a bachelor—and you know how mean and irascible lonely bachelors become. That's Tommie. He's lonely and he's mean.

As the result, George I. Simons, general manager of Atlanta parks, and "Uncle Matt" Leonard, veteran keeper of the zoo, think Tommie should have a mate.

Like kings of old, Tommie is to have an emissary seek her out for him, while he remains in his snug apartment at the zoo. Simons will shop about for a sweetheart for Tommie when he goes to the convention of the American Institute of Park Executives September 18-22, in Milwaukee, he said.

However, finding a lovely for a male baboon isn't so easy, and it may be some time before a suitable one can be discovered. Even then, the matter of a dowry will have to be arranged. So, it appears that Tommie, however lonely, will have to spend a few more months in his bachelor quarters before the sunshine of a babooness' company will come to cheer his solitude.

"Uncle Matt" and Simons are of the opinion that a wife for Tommie will make him happier. They feel that the influence of a better half will show him off to better advantage to the visitors who come to the zoo.

A mate will be a boon to the baboon, they said.

And, who knows? There may sometime come a blessed event to further soften Tommie's grumpy outlook on the world. Yes, who knows?

over to be given to military police.

The government contends that when Brooke left home to attend field maneuvers the day his wife was killed, he was dressed in slacks and shirt, and that when he returned after his wife's body was found, he wore boots and breeches.

Captain Drake also gave further testimony regarding the bloody shirt today. He testified that it was found by Sergeant Ed Hudson a little off the short cut assertedly taken by Major Brooke in going to the maneuver rendezvous.

Collar Size Matched.

He asserted the blood-stained shirt compared in collar size with the one the major wore when he returned from the maneuvers. The shirt the major was wearing, Drake said, had a trademark in it when he first saw it the night of June 8. When it was taken from Brooke the next day, the captain asserted, the trade mark had been torn out.

Captain Drake said the trade mark corresponded with that of the blood-stained shirt found by Sergeant Hudson, and that pinholes in this garment fitted officers' insignia worn by Major Brooke.

Brooke.
Captain W. D. Buie, provost marshal at Fort Benning, testified major Brooke did not deny killing his wife, when questioned on the day of the slaying.

Made No Denial.
"During the entire course of manufacturing of Major.

"During the entire course of your interrogation of Major Brooke, did he ever make a denial of killing his wife?" asked T. Hoyt Davis, United States district attorney prosecuting the case. "He did not," Buie answered. "He did not deny anything?"

snapped Chief Defense Attorney T. Hicks Fort. "He did deny that he killed her with a golf club." Buie said he began questioning Buie said he began questioning Major Brooke at 5 o'clock June 8, the day his wife was killed. Fort brought out on cross-examination of Captain Buie that the major was taken to the prison ward of the Benning hospital about 5 o'clock in the afternoon.

Plucking spasmodically at Fort's arm, beating on the table and making motions with his hands, the major showed nervous excitement in whispering instructions to Fort about proving he was under close guard at the hospital.

close guard at the hospital.

Seeing Brooke's Liquor.

Fort thundered on cross-examination regarding Captain Buie showing him through Major Brooke's quarters.

"Didn't you ask me the first thing—Do you want to see his liquor?"

"I did not."
Captain Buie stated he told Fort he had no objection to seeing anything, "not even his liquor."

Judge Deaver, warning the jury to form no opinion yet, adjourned court until Monday morning. Mrs. Brooke, mother of three children, was a former war nurse. She was found at the foot of the stairs in the home with her head crushed in.

The government has announced it would attempt to show that Major Brooke was an habitual gambler and that double indemnity insurance policies were carried on his wife's life.

Simons, parks manager, buys him a wife as lovely to look at as Tommie is. Note how Tommie's toes curl at the mere thought of a helpmeet.

90,000 To Return to School in Atlanta, Fulton Tomorrow FULTON EXPECTED

Decrease in Number of Pupils Is Expected in City.

The marching feet of nearly 90,000 Atlanta and Fulton county children will be heard tomorrow morning as they begin the annual parade back to books and classes.

City and county public schools start regular class work tomorrow—but in nealy all schools the pupils will get out early because cations, arrangements and schedules usually disrupt the first day.

Less than 65,000 pupils are expected in the Atlanta schools this year, representing a slight de-crease. In the county schools, however, registration is higher. Between 24,000 and 25,000 are expected.

Teachers and officials said the students will settle down to routine Tuesday and that before the end of the week work will be in full swing.

Increase Expected.

Jere A. Wells, county school superintendent, predicts an increase of 600 or more pupils—most of them in the higher grades. Total enrollment of the county system last year was 23,698.

New classrooms at two city schools will be in use tomorrow for the first time, T. W. Clift, business manager, said. Four new rooms and a library are at the Samuel Inman school, while six classrooms and a home economics room will be used for the first time at Washington High school. With the completion October 1 of the gymnasium at the Henry W. Grady school (Boys' and Tech High), the building program of the city school started under the CWA and continued under the FERA, the WPA and PWA, will be finished, except for permanent buildings at Maddox and Murphy Junior High schools. Each of these has $25,000 set aside to eliminate portable buildings. More than $2.-000,000 of work has been done under these agencies Clift pointed out that a $100,-

County Agents and Farmers Will Meet Here September 23.

Organization of a livestock as-sociation for the northern and central part of Georgia will be launched at a meeting of county agents and farmers from 26 north Georgia counties with a group of Atlanta businessmen at 10 o'clock Friday, September 23, at the Atlanta Athletic Club.

The meeting was called by C. A. Cobb, chairman of the livestock committee of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce, who believes formation of a livestock association for the Atlanta territory would be an important factor in raising the standard of quality as well as the volume of production of beef and dairy products.

To Farm County Units. Following the meeting, separate associations will be formed in each of the counties. Atlanta businessnen and representatives of the extension service of the University of Georgia College of Agriculture will visit each of the counties and work with the farmers in perfecting their organizations.

Plans also call for county or-ganizations to elect men to serve on the regional board of directors. After each of the counties has been organized, another meeting will be held for the purpose of completing the regional organization.

New Courses Open in Atlanta To Correct Speech Defects CAROLINA TO NAME

Georgia Tech Inaugurates Class With Latest Radio Equipment.

By LUKE GREENE.

By LUKE GREENE.

Southern whines, wheezes and drawls are going to get the gong.

Atlanta is becoming speech-conscious, and before long the person who insists on saying "hep" for "help" or "Chewsday" for "Tuesday" will be considered more of a "speech murderer" than the person who says "ain't" today.

The Atlanta Junior League, which inaugurated a campaign about a year ago to correct the about a year ago to correct the speech defects of children, has opened another of its clinics in the Medical Arts building, and now plans are being made at Georgia Tech for introducing a new course in radio speaking and voice con-trol in the public speaking de-

Georgia Tech's course will be fool-proof. The latest equipment in magnifiers and voice recording machines will be installed in a sound-proof studio. And the faces of many Tech students may be red when they hear their own voices coming from a record.

Prof. Edwin H. Folk, head of t' ? department of public speaking, explained that each student will make a record from prepared copy and one from spontaneous dis-course, and from these recordings will endeavor by individual practice to eliminate any faults in tonal qualities.

Then after he has received training in correct pronunciation and enunciation, other records will be made to test the progress he has made Defects Corrected. The radio has been largely responsible for the increased interest in correct speaking, since it exaggerates faulty enunciation and pronunciation, Prof. Folk says.

Recording equipment is particularly valuable in correcting defects, the professor pointed out. tell a person what's wrong with his speech, but when he hears it himself he can figure out immediately what's wrong," he

Professor Folk explained some of the common errors. For instance you should say "let them alone" and not "lettum lone." And by all means, it should be "gov-ernment" instead of "gubment," and "pretty" instead of "purty." It is incorrect to say "fuh" or "fer" when you mean "for," and for goodness' sake, says the professor, don't run your words together and "wyavenchewastfort" when you mean "why haven't you asked for it?"

Many well-known radio speakers could stand plenty of speecholishing, he said, and even some of the professors are beginning to discover for the first time errors they have been making for years. "Many people who pride themselves on their soothing, persuasive tones are often astonished to discover themselves guilty of a soporific base or a grating tenor," the public speaking head declared.

"It is all but impossible for any man to imagine the tonal qualities of his own voice, and though it is not our intention to develop a campus full of crooners, we hope to graduate students with a high understanding of voice culture and voice control," he added.

Small Laboratory Fee. ed. The course will be taught by Folk and Professor Andrew J. used text in public speaking

The Atlanta Junior League has approximately 87 children already enrolled in its clinic. Mrs. W. G. Hamm and Mrs. W. W. Davison are co-directors.

When a mother brings her child into the clinic, a member of the staff asks a number of questions in an effort to diagnose the case. Then a form is filled out giving the child's case history.

From then on it is a matter of training. Each child is taken sep-arately and coached for 20 minutes at each lesson. Many times the defect is merely oral inactivity, but in other cases it may be some muscular difficulty community.

That old southern accent at Georgia Tech is going to get a retouching this fall when the public speaking department introduces a course in radio speaking and voice control. Students will get a chance to hear their own voices, since the latest equipment in magnifiers and voice recording machines will be installed in a sound-proof studio. Edwin H. Folk, right, head of the public speaking department, is shown giving some preliminary lessons. The "students" are, left to right, Mary Green, Louise Branch, Robert (Chick) Aldridge and Caroline Adams.

Young Jerry Sanders learns from Mrs. William Hamm, co-director of the Junior League Speech clinic, just why he can't say certain words correctly. He makes a good student and doesn't object when Mrs. Hamm attempts to show him what's wrong with his lip movements. Virginia Hardeman, right, seems intently interested in the instruction, too. The two youngsters are among 87 enrolled in the school, which is sponsored by the Junior League for the purpose of correcting speech defects.

VOTE FOR HUGH HOWELI Is A Vote For The Winner

Hugh Howell says:

"The papers are not printing as much about me now as they will later. They haven't told you about the winning campaign we have waged from Tennessee to Florida and from Alabama to the sea. They haven't told you about the tremendous crowds of men and women who have turned out to hear Hugh Howell speak and who have pledged their support to him, and who are determined to elect him Governor on September 14th.

"But I tell you that on next Thursday you are going to hear about me on the front page of every newspaper in Georgia, because we are going to win this race. We are going to put out of the State Capitol the worst bunch that has infested this State since 1870.

"I am asking my World War buddies, I am asking the God-fearing Christian people, and I am asking the taxpavers of Georgia who want to rid themselves of the greatest load of taxes we have ever had, to give one whole day to old Georgia next Wednesday; go and work for Hugh Howell's election at the polls all day next Wednesday."

DO YOU "CUSS" THE UMPIRE?

All of us do! But making decisions is the umpire's job, and he can't please all. The best players can "take it," forget it and play by the rules.

The laws of Georgia are your rules of conduct and procedure. Your property, your good name, your very life may depend upon the enforcement of these rules. Several times with your vote you have placed Judge John D. Humphries on your Superior Court Bench and RE-QUIRED HIS OATH that he would honestly enforce these rules.

Has he been just and heard the small and the great alike? Has he held the scales of justice evenly between the poor and the rich? No man has questioned his fairness!

Is Judge Humphries capable and efficient? His record with the appellate courts shows that he is one of the most efficient judges in Georgia. His ability is recognized far beyond the limits of our secton and our State

Is he courageous? Ask those whose deeds and desires shun the light—and those who though not criminals have tried to place themselves above the law.

Is there any substitute for experience? NO! And Judge Humphries' experience enables him to reach the heart of the case before him more rapidly than an inexperienced judge can do, with a resulting saving of time to the court and money to you taxpayers.

A canvass of the more than 1,400 lawyers of Fulton County reveals that more than 85 per cent are overwhelmingly in favor of and are supporting Judge John D. Humphries.

Remember, a judge MUST decide questions presented in his court. There are two sides to every lawsuit, naturally one side or the other must lose. The real basis of the opposition to Judge Humphries has arisen from a group of lawyers who have been on the losing side of cases before him.

Do you want a judge who is fair, experienced and fearless, or do you want a judge who will attempt to please everybody to keep down personal opposition? We believe that the integrity of the bench is too great a price for any judge to pay for votes.

We agree with the great majority that Judge John D. Humphries is the man best qualified for judge of our Fulton Superior Court. We earnestly urge your support for his re-election on Wednesday, September 14th.

LAWRENCEVILLE, Ga., Sept. 10.—Ben T. Huiet, Atlanta lawyer and businessman, today climaxed his campaign for commissioner of labor with a speech here in which he cited his record as an Atlanta alderman as proof of his ability to handle the post which he seeks. Huiet is one of two candidates opposing Tolly Whitaker, who was named commissioner by Governor Rivers when the present administration created the State Depart ment of Labor.

"After a personal canvass of the sthate's 159 counties I am convinced that I will carry 150 of them." Huiet said. The candidate said he had saved the people of the state several millions of dollars in utility rates while a member of the Public Service Commission and pointed out his interest in labor while serving on the Atlanta board of

Unrivalled Value in

IN BUYING anything as important as a heating plant, be sure to compare values; be sure of getting the most for your money. Holland welcomes such comparison because Holland prices will be lowest if all bids are on equal sizes, equal heating capacity, equal quality of materials and comparable efficiency. In comparing bids, therefore, check every point carefully. A furnace too small for your needs costs less at first but, on coldest days, calls for over-firing that burns out castings and wastes fuel extravagantly. Repairs and extra fuel soon pay for a larger furnace. Likewise, if warm or cold air pipes are too small, too few in number or not properly arranged, it means high fuel bills, more repairs, shorter rnace life and less comfort besides!

OPERATING COSTS

IMPORTANT

So, consider operating costs carefully before buying, as you will have them many years. Remember, this company became the world's largest of its kind not merely for giving superior service and comfort but also for saving owners many dollars yearly in lower operating costs. Remember, too, that Holland's

3 YEARS TO PAY

What's more, Holland's liberal financing

COMPTROLLER GENERAL (Vote for One) W. B. HARR SON HOMER C. PARKER

September 14, 1938
Apcordance with the Rules of the emocratic Executive Committee.

Advocate Elimination of Georgia Patronage System.

The interests of the League of Women Voters are widely spread, touching every major question with which government today is concerned. On this page today the league questions candidates on governmental problems in which the women voters are interested. the women voters are interested. A digest of some of the League's more important concerns follows:

The League of Women Voters worked for the three-year extension of the Reciprocal Trade Agreement program in 1937 and has consistently supported the principle of downward revision of tariffs by reciprocal action as an aid to consumers; as an important step toward removal of economic frictions between nations; and as a practical method of making necessary adjustments in tariff schedules to promote and protect American trade interests.

NEUTRALITY

The League of Women Voters is prepared to support amendments to the neutrality act to permit United States co-operation with other nations in the application of embargoes designed to restrain nations violating mutual treaty obligations, and to provide for embargoes on essential war materials in addition to those on munitions and loans and credits at the discretion of the President. The League accepts the principle that a neutrality law should state na-tional policy and should provide for sufficiently flexible adminis-tration for the fulfillment of that policy in any situation that may develop.

PUBLIC PERSONNEL

The quality and cost of public services depend, in the last analysis, upon the men and women employed by government. Although some able people may be chosen under the patronage system, the public interest is safeguarded only when all public employes carrying on the routine business of government are chosen impartially on the basis of ability. A major interest of the League of Women Voters is the elimination of the patronage system and the establishment of a personnel system which will attract to and keep in the public service persons of outstanding ability.

In the enactment of personnel legislation Georgia should take ad-vantage of those accepted standards which other states have found through experience to be safeguards in personnel administration. The two bills which were before the general and special sessions of the legislature fell short of these standards in a number of respects.

In personnel administration the personnel director is all-important. There are only a few personnel exports in the country. In establishing a personnel system, the League is of the opinion that no resident restriction should be included in the law which would limit the state in engaging the services of an expert director. The organization is further of the opinion that the law should provide for a directors' salary of not less than $5,000, which is the minimum salary with which the services a director of ability could be obtained.

The League supports provision for an advisory commission which would have the responsibility of employing a personnel director who would have executive authority. The organization opposes an executive commission.

In regard to employes now in government service, the organiza-tion holds that a "blanketing-in" provision should be opposed and it supports provision for either noncompetitive or open competitive examinations.

The current legislative practice in Georgia, which compels communities to submit their local legislation to a vote of the general assembly, was adopted in the days following the carpet bag rule. This was done at that time in order to provide an extra check against local corruption from which the state had just been rescued.

ON VITAL ISSUES

Probes Positions on Tariffs, Neutrality and Civil Service Extension.

In its probe of candidates' be liefs and intentions the League of Women Voters did not confine its questions to domestic issues. Indeed, the intensely alive problem of tariffs—which many experts believe to be at the roots of the present highly disturbed international situation—is one of the league's principal concerns It delved likewise into this nation's neutrality, inquiring of the candidates to what extent they believed the present American neutrality act to be functioning satisfactorily, and soliciting their views also on the desirability of amendments to the act (1) to prohibit sale of essential war materials, as well as munitions, to bel-ligerents, and (2) to require this government to confer with other nations to determine the aggressor in any given war and to decide on a proper course of retaliatory ac-

Further, the questionnaire inquired fully into each candidate's position regarding political pa-tronage, extension of the merit system under the civil service, reduction of the number of presidential appointments requiring senate confirmation, and reorganization of the civil service administration to exemplified in private business.

The precise questions and the responses of the candidates follow:

What is your postion on the establishment of the Merit System of government employment in Georgia to replace the present Patronage System? (No response to questionnaire)

"The Democratic platform called for Civil Service, and I advocated it in my message to the legislature."

I am in favor of Civil Service but not necessarily as outlined by the League.

I was one of the leaders in the last session spon-soring Civil Service bill for state employes.

I favor legislation to eliminate the "Patronage System."

Favor Civil Service. Don't favor importing per-sonnel director. Favor training a Georgian to study other systems . . . and adopting what appears to be must practical for our needs.

A personnel director for selecting government em-ployes would undoubtedly be an improvement over the patronage method . . I think a resident and taxpayer of the state should always be given prefer-ence 'n political or business jobs wherever a man of the desired ability can be obtained at the salary involved.

Favor real civil service.

II. What is your position on the establishment of limited Home Rule for Georgia cities and counties by which purely local matters would be determined by a majority vote of those affected?

"I have always been for Home Rule."

As long as it applies to local bills only.

I agree with the League's stand on this.

III. What is your position on legislation which would provide that, in order to insure a secret ballot, the number be eliminated from the ballot before it is cast into the ballot box?

(Rep.ied that he had not been able to get time to study the questions therefore would not want to express his opinion.) "I am for it provided there is sufficient safeguard against fraudulent substitutions." Above all means, keep the ballot secret.

Gubernatorial Candidate Says Supporters in All Counties Assure Election

Victory in Wednesday's state-wide primary was forecast yes-terday by Hugh Howell, one of Governor Rivers' three opponents for re-election

"We have this election won," the Atlanta lawyer declared as he neared completion of his speaking

I have been in every section of Georgia and have spoken in nearly all the counties, and the great crowds of enthusiastic supporters who have met me in every section of the state and pledged me their support are absolute evidence that we have this campaign

ous contender in this election, and the great masses of God-fearing, upright citizens who believe in onest government, are determined to put the Ed Rivers regime out of office on September 14, and are determined to elect Hugh Howell to do this.

"Ed and his crowd are whistling in the graveyard. They are trying to put on a bluff. They have promised to pave every pig path in Georgia. It would take more money than there is in the treasury to pave half the roads they have promised; and they have promised jobs to everybody in Georgia who wants a job

"Of course, if Ed could fool the people again, he wouldn't have any jobs for anybody, because he has already put on an army of additional employes, and it would be impossible to raise the money to pay any more.

"We have this race won. The only question that remains to be settled is to find out how big the score will be. I want to urge my friends to go out early on election morning and to give a whole day ner's Real Estate Company,

ENDANGERS CASE

Prosecutor Again in 'Hot Water' With Pecora at Hines' Trial.

NEW YORK, Sept. 10 .- (AP)-The immediate outcome of the trial of James J. Hines, veteran Tammany district leader, on policy racket charges hung in doubt tonight as Supreme Court Justice Ferdinand Pecora weighed a defense motion for a mistrial, based on a question asked an important defense witness by District At-torney Thomas E. Dewey.

The move climaxed a controver-sial session, in which Lyon Boston, lawyer and former assistant district attorney under William C. Dodge, testified Dodge assigned him in 1934 to investigate the policy racket with especial em-phasis on any possible connection Hines might have with it.

Dewey sought to show that Dodge's assignment of Boston was mere "window-dressing," since Boston, a young man, manifestly lacked the experience needed to get at the roots of the policy it was announced yesterday.

Fires Question. Dewey was proceeding calmly, and Boston, who was to catch a ship for Bermuda, was glancing anxiously at the clock, when the district attorney suddenly asked:

"Don't you know that William Fellows Morgan Jr., commissioner of markets, testified before the grand jury about James J. Hines' connection with the poultry Before Boston could reply, Lloyd Justice Pecora, who clashed with Dewey numerous times during n's cross-examination, looked nettled. His brows lowered, his jaw jutted out farther than usual.

"I shall reserve decision," he "The court will now take a recess until Monday morning at

He leaned forward and beckoned to Dewey, whose face was flushed. The district attorney moved forward to the bench and Pecora began speaking to him in a vigorous undertone.

Stryker's assistant, Harold Shapiro, said outside of court no memorandum would be submitted on the motion since "it is so plain that no memorandum is needed.

Three new naval officers have assumed their duties with the naval R. O. T. C. unit at Georgia Tech, it was announced yesterday. They are Commander H. E. Paddock, Lieutenant Commander Wyatt Craig and Lieutenant Commander Paul R. Coloney.

A graduate of the United States Naval Academy in the class of 1915, Commander Paddock relieved Commander R. S. Haggart as executive officer of the R. O. T. C. unit. He previously was in com-mand of the U. S. S. Lamson, one of the navy's latest type destroyers attached to the battle force and based at San Diego, Cal.

Lieutenant Commander Craig relieved Lieutenant S. F. Oden as instructor with the R. O. T. C. unit and also as instructor of the At-lanta battalion fleet naval reserves. Before coming to Atlanta he was communication officer of the U. S. S. Arizona, a battleship attached to the battle force and based at Long Beach, Cal. He is a graduate of the naval academy in the class of 1921.

Lieutenant Commander Coloney, who relieved Lieutenant Commander J. B. Carter as an instructor, was formerly in command of the U. S. S. Sicard, a destroyer type light mine layer at-tached to the battle fleet and based at Honolulu. He also is a graduate of the naval academy in the class of 1921.

The three officers who were relieved at Georgia Tech were assigned to sea duty.

ATHENS, Ga., Sept. 10.-You wouldn't think, off hand, that a coach who has a quartet of 10-second backs at his beck and call would have many offensive worries, but there are other things to consider besides speed.

That's one of the reasons why Joel Hunt wishes he had one composite back composed of the best qualities of Harry Stevens and Billy Mims, both Atlanta boys.

Stevens is a fine kicker but his passing is not the best. Mims is a fine passer but his kicking doesn't measure up. So what Joel Hunt really needs is a combination -one who can kick and pass acceptably.

And it may be that Earl Hise, currently of Chickamauga, will supply what Georgia needs by November. Hise, a sophomore, kicks and passes but lacks experience. So one of the things that really worries Hunt is what will happen until Hise is ready. There is another backfield problem. That concerns the all-important blocking back. Bob Salisbury has been shifted from guard to quarterback to plug the gap. Back of him is Robin Nowell, a sophomore from Monroe. Backfield speed can be minimized by lack of blocking. Hence, Salisbury and Nowell figure rather importantly in the backfield set-up.

Georgia has Vassa Cate, Oliver Hunnicutt and Jimmy Fo

Georgia has Vassa Cate, Oliver Hunnicutt and Jimmy Fordham as fine climax runners. All three will never appear in the backfield at the same time, howe ...

will be a fresh man on the bench at all times to go in and main- par for the battleground is tough, tain the speed motif. Cate probably will start most of the games and Hunnicutt will be used as his replacement.

There is much reason to believe that if all goes well and he doesn't get hurt, Jimmy Fordham, who prepped at Graymont-Summitt, will be the sensation of southern backs this fall.

Fordham has what it takes. He has speed, weight and absorbs punishment well. He is a real climax runner. It seems that a lot of the hopes for a strong offensive will center in Fordham's ability to run with the

Then there are Cate and Hunnicutt. Both are capable of cutting loose and picking up ground if they have the necessary blocking. You always get back to blocking when you think of offensive, for the best backs can look bad if the blocking doesn't

That's the backfield situation at Georgia pretty much in a nutshell. It either can be one of the greatest or one of the most mediocre backfields, all depending on how the blocking

LINE PROBLEMS, TOO.

There is a lack of reserves in the line. Taking Salisbury out of the line of necessity made it necessary to bridge a gap at guard. Winston Hodgson, an Athens boy, may solve this problem satisfactorily.

Hodgson will pair with Howard (Smiley) Johnson. Back of them are Walter Wilfong, another fine Athens boy, and Ben Kersey, a sophomore.

Most of the line reserves will be made up of untried sophs. For instance, Bill Badgett, who seems greatly improved and is now getting down to playing weight, and Albert Decharleroy will hold down the first string tackle posts. Their substitutes are Lee McKinney and Charley Williams, another Athens boy,

There is experience at ends with Marvin Gillespie and Carroll Thomas, of Decatur, on the firing line. But their substitutes, Alex McCaskill and James Skipworth, are sophomores. More experience could be pro-vided at the wings if Knox Eldredge and Ned Barbre should come through.

Captain Quinton Lumpkin is figured to be one of the nation's outstanding centers. He will be the wheelhorse of the line. There are few better pivot men. Lumpkin is strong in all departments of play.

But Coach Hunt does not want Lumpkin to be a 60-minute player. He figures he will need rest during the season. So Allen Rutledge, of Atlanta, and Charles-Selby, both sophomores, are the chief hopes in back of the Bulldog captain. There are necessarily a few "ifs" connected with Georgia's football prospects this fall. As Coach Hunt says, it may take until November for the boys to really be ready to play some football. And yet, if things work out, they may be set from the start.

BEST MAN ON FIELD.

One of the really colorful members of the coaching staff is Wally Butts. There are ifs and ands and then there is Wally Butts, a stocky young fellow built something like Tarzan White, of Alabama fame, will take issue with any football candidate. Butts is the best man on the field until proved

The boys have come to respect Butts' prowess. Used to be they'd take him up readily, but now they are inclined to get in good shape before questioning his ability to "take them out" or pin them down.

I imagine J. V. Sikes might well prove another best man on the field, as well as Hunt, himself, and Elmer Lampe. The coaching staff is getting fullest co-operation from the boys. There is something contagious about Joel Hunt's spirit. There is something contagious about Joel Hunt's spirit. tic. The Georgia schedule does not look too tough on the face Oglethorpe.

of it. But there are several possible pitfalls.

The second game of the season is one. South Carolina's Gamecocks will be primed for the Bulldogs at Columbia. Holy Cross, one of the nation's unbeaten teams last year, may prove a tough foe at Worcester. The Crusaders beat Georgia last Florida, Tulane, Auburn and Georgia Tech will follow in order. The Gators are up and coming. Many think this is to be Tulane's year. Auburn is reputed to be stronger and Tech is expected to be tougher than otherwise in November.

So, while there may be a soft touch here and there on the schedule, for the most part it is studded with possible pitfalls. It is possible for Georgia to get beat three or four times. That gives you an idea about the schedule.

On the other hand, it is possible for Georgia to come through undefeated. That gives you an idea about the pros-When Hunt and his aides attain the necessary balance the Bulldogs will be difficult to handle.

Fullback Martin Kelly Stands Out in Drills for Furman Contest.

John Patrick violated an old English tradition yesterday by failing to call a halt and allow Oglethorpe gridmen to have tea and crumpets when the clock struck four. Maybe it wasn't cricket but the Petrel coach had his charges in the midst of an hour and half scrimmage. They are preparing for their opening game against Furman Friday night in Greenville.

JOHN HILL SOLD TO BOSTON BEES: PRICE: $15,000

If Third-Sacker Fails, He'll Be Returned to Crackers.

By ROY WHITE.

Johnny Hill, the Douglasville hunter and Atlanta's third basemanman for the past four years, was sold Saturday to the Boston Bees, it was announced by Earl Mann, president of the Atlanta Crackers.

Both the New York Giants and the Philadelphia Athletics were interested in Hill, but a long distance telephone call from Bob Quinn, owner and president of the Bees, confirmed the sale Saturday morning. Hill will bring $15,000 if he makes the grade.

Hill will report to the Boston Bees' spring training camp and was sold on the condition that he make good; otherwise he will be returned to the Crackers during the month of May.

Bob Quinn is known not to buy any "lemons." In fact he rarely ever makes a purchase which proves unworthy.

IMPROVED EACH YEAR. Hill played with Douglasville, his home town in the old West Georgia league for several years before signing a Cracker contract four years ago. He made the Southern league grade the first year and has improved with each succeeding season.

Two hits in Friday night's game gave Hill a .335 average for the season, only three points behind Haas, Nashville first baseman. Johnny was robbed of two other hits by sensational running catches, otherwise he would be the Southern league's leading hit-ter as the teams swing into the last day of the season.

Douglasville Johnny has been to bat 537 times and obtained 184 hits, only three behind Campbell. Reese, Memphis first baseman, is trailing Hill by one point and the batting championship for the season rests entirely on this after-

FIELDS STEADILY. Not only has Hill's hitting been outstanding this season, but he has fielded steadily and is close to the top among the third basemen.

Hill's ability to hit in the pinches has won more than a half dozen games alone and his ninth inning base hits, several of them being home runs, have been outstanding Although Hill's sale is conditional, there is practically no chance of the Douglasville boy returning to Ponce de Leon park next season. He's major league timber, and Bob Quinn is long known for spending his money wisely.

And so it will be goodbye to Johnny Hill after the Shaughnessy play-off and with his departure will go the best wishes of thousands of Atlanta's baseball fans. He deserves the chance, his first in the major leagues.

Tech High, Boys' High and Com-mercial will share in the opening of the annual prep football season

Tech High, city and state champions, will play the first game at 8 o'clock Thursday night at Ponce de Leon park with Etowah, Tenn.
Boys' High and Commercial High follow at the same hour Friday night at Grant field.

Tech High comes back at 8 o'clock Saturday night against Wilson High, of Portsmouth, Va., at Grant field.

Coach W. A. Alexander and the Georgia Tech athletic board last week granted permission for each of the major prep teams to play one game at Grant field, while the Southern league play-off is in progress.

Tech High elected the Saturday game with Wilson High and since Commercial plays Boys' High, both decided to let the opening game go as their lone Grant field contest. And should the Southern league games be in progress dur-ing the next week end, other plans will have to be made.

Boys' High and Tech High have been at work more than a month and both squads are in excellent condition. In fact there are more good candidates in both camps than ever before, and the coaches are well pleased. Coaches Scarborough and Gabe Tolbert are particularly pleased with their backfield of Captain Harry Nicholes at fullback, Ben Cogburn at quarterback, and Bonner and Parks, fullbacks. That is the tentative first string with the second and even third strings showing more possibilities than former varsity backs.

Tech High's line is uncertain and will not be determined until after Tuesday's rough scrimmage. Several combinations are being given thorough trials, but only Alternate Captain Guthrie's tackle post is certain. post is certain.

Commercial High was hit heavily by graduation last June, and Coach Godwin is having trouble replacing both the line and backfield positions.

Boys' High will have a much improved team over last year. The backfield is better balanced than in the past several years, with no player outstanding.

Boys' High's line will be green with one or two exceptions, but on the whole appears much stronger than at the same time last year. Webb at center, Kuniansky at guard and Captain Conger at end are the mainstays around which Coaches Doyal and Keith are building the forward wall.

Tech High's backfield which will open the season Thursday night at Ponce de Leon park against Etowah, Tenn., is all ready to go. It has been working together for almost a month now. Left to right, Ben Cogburn, quarterback; Frank Bonner, right halfback; Dick Parks, left halfback, and Captain Harry Nicholes, fullback. Nicholes was shifted from quarterback last year to fullback, as there are more dependable quarterbacks than fullbacks.

Atlanta Is Likely Entrant Says Bennie Strickland, Former Baylor Athlete.

By THAD HOLT.
A Southern Professional Football league, discussed as a possibility A Southern Professional Football league, discussed as a possibility for nigh onto a generation, will become a reality by the fall of 1939.

Bennie Strickland, a young Texan who has a way of getting things done, and who ranks as one of the greatest athletes produced at Baylor University, announced here yesterday that Birmingham, New Orleans,

Houston, Dallas are definitely assured of berths in the league, which will embrace a minimum of eight teams and be divided into southwestern and southeastern divisions, the winners to meet in an annual playoff for the champion-

Atlanta and Memphis are virtually certain to have franchises in the league, according to Strick-land, who is stopping at the Ansley for several days while confer-ring with Atlantans interested in the movement. Eventually, Strickland plans to establish permanent headquarters either in Atlanta or at Birmingham where he last week staged the Chicago Bear-All-Star game which attracted 12,000 fans.

300 SHARES.

Strickland explained that the capital stock of the league will embrace 300 shares valued at $100 per share. These shares will be distributed among the six cities mentioned, at a maximum of 50 shares per city. Strickland re-vealed that only Atlanta and Memphis had not subscribed to their shares and said he expected to have them within the fold by the latter part of the week.

After the stock is distributed, there follows the issuing of franchises to cities desiring to enter the league. Franchises may be Continued in Fourth Sports Page. POWER LACKING

ATLANTA, GA., SEPTEMBER 11, 1938.

THE NATION NEEDS GEORGE

When Georgia Democratic voters go to the polls next Wednesday to decide the issue in the senatorial primary, they will be selecting a man to represent them in the United States senate during years which, unless all signs fail, will be more vital for the future of this country than any like period for decades. There is every indication that the fate of democratic government itself will hang in the balance during the next two years. Certainly, the fate of the Democratic party, as it is conceived in the south, will be determined between now and 1941.

Thus, there is presented an issue before the voters of Georgia, this week, which transcends in importance all other considerations. Before it personalities of candidates fade into insignificance. All the money which the federal government can pour into a state acquiescent to the political demands of that government becomes but a mess of pottage offered as payment for the purchase of a people's birthright.

The man or woman who cannot see, or interpret, the prophetic writings, must be blind, indeed.

The plain, unadorned truth is that the party which today bears the label "Democrat" is controlled by leaders who are not Democrats. The administration, by its own admission, has deserted the party which placed it in office and is seeking to form a new party based upon dreams of left-wing advisers who would lead this nation along the same paths of totalitarianism which have brought a new and fearful autocracy to the nations of Europe.

. The birth pangs of this new party were first seen during the last session of congress. It is a party whose unannounced, yet evident, platform would place all authority and power in the hands of the executive branch of government. It seeks to destroy the three-branched system of checks and balances which the fathers of the nation created.

The first step taken by the new party theorists was the attempt to emasculate the United States supreme court by "packing" it with puppets, in the robes of justices, who would humbly do the bidding of the executive powers.

This, to the eternal glory of the United States senate, was defeated. Georgia Democrats are proud the successful fight was led, among others, by Senator Walter F. George.

The next move of the new party group was an attempt to take all government departments and bureaus and governmental activities from the control of congress and place them, too, in subservience to the executive. This was the reorganization bill, likewise defeated and which Senator George likewise opposed.

Now, through the so-called "purge" of Democratic members of the congress branded as "conservatives" by that same new party group, it is sought to fill both houses of the national legislative branch with Charlie McCarthys, "yes men" pledged to always do the bidding of the administration.

President Roosevelt has aligned himself with this new party movement. He has, on numerous occasions in public speeches, declared the issue is no longer between Democrats and Republicans, but between "liberals" and "conservatives." He has assumed to himself the sole right of classifying candidates in these two groups. By some mysterious power he believes he can read "what is within a man's heart" and, regardless of the record, he brands those who have, by some one act or other, won Presidential disapproval, as "conservatives," and labels the sheep he considers worthy of his blessing as the "liberals."

In a press interview a week ago, the President stated he would support a "liberal" Republican candidate against a "conservative" Democratic opponent.

Thus, he deserts the party which placed him in the highest office within the gift of any party in the United States. Thus, he turns his back upon the Democrats and gives his allegiance to this new alignment he has created and dubbed "liberals."

President Roosevelt, by his own words, has abandoned his position as leader of the Democratic party. He is striving to form a new party of radical left-wingers, hand-picked, who would glorify the executive branch of the government and make of the legislative and judicial branches nothing but time-serving sycophants of an all-powerful White House.

Worst of all, not only from a southern, but from a national viewpoint, he seeks not only to array class against class, but panders to racial jealousies by openly courting the negro vote. Through the use of the taxpayers' money in the form of "relief" and WPA checks, he won that vote, almost 100 per cent, from the Republican party in 1936. He sought to pay for that vote by passage of the vicious, dangerous and cruel anti-lynching bill. A bill that would forever make the sovereign states but chattels of the central government. That bill was kept from passage only by the heroic stand of a group of southern Democrats in the senate who preferred the enmity of the administration to betrayal of their people. Senator George was one of these.

All these same issues, in aggravated form, are certain to come again before the congress, during the next session. The administration seeks to make certain, in advance, of passage of them all, including the supreme court packing measure, the reorganization bill and the anti-lynching bill, by "purging" from congress those stalwarts of democracy who prevented their enactment at the last session.

There is a very real threat of autocracy in the United States, in the near future, if such proposals as these are enacted into law. It may today loom as a smiling and benevolent autocracy, but tomorrow it may wear, instead of a smile, the bushy eyebrows of a John L. Lewis.

If you would know who are the stalwarts of true democracy, both in the nation and in the party, you have only to glance at the list of leaders who are no longer in favor in the councils of the administration. It is a list of high honor, a list which will go down into histor, alongside those other lists of patriots who dared all to defend the heritage of a free United States.

It includes such men as Jack Garner, of Texas, vice president. Only six years ago he was nominated by Texas and California as their choice for the presidency. Today he is viewed with suspicion at the White House.

There is that distinguished Virginian, Carter Glass, likewise out of favor at the White House. And his fellow senator from Virginia, Harry

There is Pat Harrison of Mississippi, there is Josiah Bailey, of North Carolina; Pat Mc-Carran, of Nevada; Ellison Smith, of South Carolina; Millard Tydings, of Maryland; Walter George, of Georgia, and others.

With one lone exception, James M. Cox, of Ohio, there is not a living Democrat who ever received the nomination of his party for president who is in favor with those at Washington who now would control the party, or form this new party of "liberals."

Thus the issue of Wednesday next, in Georgia, becomes greater than one of personalities. It is not a question of support, or non-support for the President, as an individual. The issue lies between democracy and this strange new theory of government.

Georgia, and the nation, will need such champions of democracy as Walter F. George during the coming years. If American democracy, as it lives today in the hearts of Georgians, is not to perish, Senator George must be the victor in Wednesday's primary.

THE SYMBOLIC HITCH-HIKER

The present may go down in history as the "free ride era." That is, if the imaginative men of the future who will scan records of their past, are fortunate enough to come upon chronicles dealing with the hitch-hiker. For the hitch-hiker symbolizes the free ride and personifies the tendency to get something for nothing. No matter in what light it is considered, that tendency stands as a fault in our national life. Future historians are bound to note it, and to ponder it as a significant manifestation, not a trivial, passing phenomenon.

A classic case recently reported dealt with two students in a western university. These lads won fame as champion hitch-hikers. They journeyed 8,500 miles without the output of a dime for traveling expenses. This was hitchhiking in the grand manner, a free ride with a vengeance. Other news of hitch-hikers related competition between teams of young men, each team determined to beat the other by racing to a distant city and home again.

In neither of these instances were the hitchhikers in need of free rides. They had the money to take their trips, but they preferred to thumb their way. That the generous motorists who aided then, might have worked hard to buy the car and the fuel therein never occurred to the thumb-waggers. In that thought lies the significance of the hitch-hiker as a thing of shame. In the beginning, when economic depression caught many persons, motorists who aided hitch-hikers without funds to go from one place to another accomplished some good. It was a human touch, a helping hand. Now, the free ride has come to be regarded as a right. That it is a national bad habit is clearly seen any day, and week, on any well-travelled road. For the most part, hitch-hikers are young people. He who receives something for nothing cannot help but chip a bit of self-respect from his own character. With enough chipping, there isn't much character left. Free rides on the highways lead to the demand for free rides on

BLUE IN THE FACE

This is a subject I feel particularly strongly about because in my business I have to hang around politicians and I have heard them laughing about the tricks they play on people, the appeals to their prejudices they make until I have become blue in the face. It's bad enough to listen to this sort of stuff when they make speeches but to have to hear them recount it hilariously in private is just too much.

SIMPLEST ANSWER

This is the simplest answer to the problem. It may even work effectively for a time. ing process and a redistribution of wealth through confiscation or taxation, there seems to be more to go around for a short period. Furthermore, when the ideal of improvement, change, progress is driven from the wish and imagination of a people, security on any basis is preferable to the gamble of personal initiative in an uncontrolled competitive social state. In a word, the young lady who is looking for a job and cannot get it is not conosled when we conservatives say that capitalism makes for equality of opportunity. Her problem is to eat. And when she finds that the alternative is starvation or state intervention in the form of the WPA, she accepts the latter with all its implications and dangers. After a while, she becomes so accustomed to state intervention, to being a number in a bureaucratic world, that govrnment control of her life seems fair and just. When Harry Hopkins or David Lasser tells her how to vote, she does not resent it, just Germans did not resent either the form of the ballot presented to them or the pressure employed by government to achieve an almost unanimous vote for Hitler.

It does not seem wrong to such people when the President of the United States adopts the role of Jim Farley and goes about the country selecting candidates, telling the people how to vote, usurping the sovereign right of the peo-ple to determine for themselves who shall be their representatives what shall be their government. They do not resent the implications of such sentences as these:

"To carry out my responsibil-ity as President it is clear that there should be co-operation be-tween the members of my own party and myself. "That is one of the essentials of a party form of government.

country for nearly a century and a half." happened in this country for a depending upon politicians to depending upon politicians to do our thinking. We have to offer had party government but representative government. We have not based the relations congress and the President on the principle of leadership, but on the principle of checks and balances of limitations and inhibitions.

PERSONAL POPULARITY FADING AS FACTOR

It is no longer a question of Mr. Roosevelt's personal popularity. That is fast disappearing. The American people are accustomed to him and his voice and his manner. He is no longer a novelty. His popularity is not the 1938 that it was in 1936. But security is the factor. And will be the essential political problem in the United States for decades to come. It is the essence of the Roosevelt revolution For this reason, the Communists support the New Deal openly and completely. They base their politithe United States cal program in the United States a demand for security—for forms upon two ideals: Security for the of social security. And how do we cal program in worker and farmer in affairs: collective security in incept of security is a stabilized economy in which the means of production and distribution are wned and operated by the government.

They do not anticipate that the New Deal will accept that doctrine, economic crisis will leave private capital and private enterprise so crippled and effete that govern-ment ownership will be inevitable.

Collective security to them means international by Great Britain, the United States and France, in partnership with Soviet Russia, in the affairs of Europe and Asia. The objective is to destroy Hitler, Mussolini, Japan. The main beneficiary of such a policy immediately would be Soviet Russia, and possibly France and China. It is a policy that undoubtedly will lead to war. On the other hand, there is no assurance that any other policy will pronot lead to war.

> PROGRESS NOT ISSUE

This generation is not concerned with progress. It is a post-war generation. It is suffering from the consequences of the destruction of the agencies of progress by war. It has witnessed retrogression in most countries of the world. How can we speak of progress to a German or an Austrian or a Czech or a Chinese or any of the millions of human beings who are paying today for the errors of those who insisted on revenge in 1914? How can we stir the minds of those in this country who have been jobless since 1929? The New Deal answers this question glibly. It says that prog-ress is dead; the frontiers are closed; there is a rich man's world and a poor man's world; therefore, the government steps in and arbitrarily determines how men are to ment and is engaged in reorganizing American society on this basis. The New Deal, being politically and intellectually dishonest, dares not announce with any degree of forthrightness that that is its program or its intention. The Law And the People

By PEYRE GAILLARD.

A few days ago my "inquisitive" friend got a bit peevish. You should have seen him. He had a couple of beers under his jerkin and was, for this reason, a trifle more talkative than usual. In the heat of the discussion over some relatively unimportant, as well as impractical, theory of his regarding the law, he snapped: "What is law, anyway?"-as if he would shatter the defense at one fell

But no! He's one of those rare in foreign fields for no other purpose, seemingly, than finding out how little the so called "experts" now about their own business. So, as usual, I was forced into rigging-up some sort of rebuttal to head off his insatiable, and almost daily, ambition to trip me up in what he often refers to laughingly as my field.

Definition Impossible Law-the word itself-as I tried to explain, is quite indefinite in its meaning. Or rather, it is so all-embracing as to make defining it, as one would define most other words, practically impossible. My ever-questioning friend, no doubt, had this very thought in mind when he sought to "trip me up."

They are born out of the ideas and ideals, the aspirations and the affections of mankind. How superficial it is to say "it makes no difference what we think, it is what we do that counts." It is the thought which produces the deed, and the quality of the thought determines the quality of the deed. We can not find in dictionaries the meaning of words when they are spoken nor in technical libraries can we establish the value of any work. There is a spiritual definition which the soul gives to words, and an eternal quality which the heart gives to deeds.

Where Are Lives. Now let us remember that a man lives in the world of his thought. Even the world of the five senses is the world he thinks it is. So one may choose where he will live in this thought world more certainly than in the world of the senses, because he may choose his own thought life. Think of two men with totally different mental viewpoints. Each walks through the same bit of forest and field. One man dwells upon a wrong which has been with his deep hurt, and hatred of his enemy, he returns home ob-livious of all his surroundings. There brooding over his sense of outrage, hatred grows into revenge, and murder is the child of his thought.

The other man walks through these same scenes sensitive to every sound, and responsive to every appeal of sheen and shadow. merous investigations and framed legislation with a view to pre-venting our participation in one. Public opinion is overwhelmingly anti-war, and various polls show that a large proportion of people do not think we ought to fight under any circumstances unless invaded.

Some of these polls also show, however, that a very considerable percentage of those who vote against war think that if there is a major conflict, we shall not avoid being drawn into it.

Certainly nobody in the United States today thinks of sending an expeditionary force to Europe, and nobody in a responsible position in any European country either desires or expects us to.

POSITION CLEARER

But it is equally certain that the American position toward Europe is much clearer and more uniform than it was between 1914 and 1916.

There is, first of all, our changed position with regard to neutrality. In 1914 the basis of our neutrality policy was the his-toric doctrine of "freedom of the That simply meant that we claimed the right, as neutrals, to trade with anybody, neutrals or we attempted to run the British blockade of Germany, and in the first two years of the war we had serious conflicts with Great Britprevent us from rendering impo-

We have, in our neutrality leg-islation, definitely abandoned this doctrine. The new and legal theory is that we should keep out of war by keeping out of danger. But it is left to the discretion of the President to decide to what extent most of the neutrality act should be applied. The sale of arms to both sides must be abandoned, providing it is decided that a state of war exists, but the Chinese-Japanese conflict indicates that when public opinion has more sympathy with one side than the other even this provision can be suspended by simply not recognizing that there is a war. And apart from the sale of arms everything is discretionary, and at most the President is empowered to apply the cash-and-carry clause, which simply means that we sell only to those who can pay and cart off the goods.

Final reports of chain stores for August reflect a decided pick-up NEW YORK, Sept. 10.-The stock market gives ample evidence that it would advance still further, in spite of its 25-point rise since June, and business shows encouraging signs of recovery. Both are restrained by the continued critical nature of the situation in central Europe. So long as this obtains, neither speculator nor investor in securities, banker, manufacturer, merchant, or middle man in business, will be disposed to make any sizable ventures in these fields.

as against in June and July.

Railroad car loadings for the week of September 3 were the best so far recorded, with those of individual systems, like Pennsylvania and New York Central, the highest of the year. The holiday naturally affected iron and steel production, which was off to 39.9 per cent, compared with 44 per cent in the full week prior to Labor Day. This loss is expected in spite of its 25-point rise since

And, unfortunately, there is no warrant for belief that, even if the present impasse is lifted with-out resort to war, others will not later develop. For most of the trained observers in Europe today are convinced that Hitler and the Nazi element that most influences his politicies are determined to push on into the southeast, and do not intend to wait until England and France are fully equipped to oppose them. Mobilization of defense forces by France on her German and Italian frontiers, similar action Ly Belgium, and the movement of a British fleet into the North sea were incidents of the week that brought the situation to a degree of excitement and public and degree of excitement and public and outlined to a degree of excitement and public and outlined to a degree of excitement and public and outlined to a degree of excitement and public and outlined to be sold next those to be sold next and about are quoted at a premium of about 13-4 points. So the new issue will undoubtedly be well oversubin the August days of 1914.

Reflect Fright. Fright on the part of capital was Fascist rule. There was no effort made to support sterling, which declined well under the old gold parity. Considering the news, the stock markets of London and the continent were steady after those in Italy had been upset by alleged French threats at her border towns.

Highl cent. The most common forecast heard around Detroit is based on the probability of good business during the late winter and early spring months. It suggests total sales for 1939 cars between 3,000,-000 and 3,250,000. This contrasts well with the 2,250,000 cars sold during the 1938 model year, but is still below 1936 and 1937.

K. T. Keller, president of the Chrysler Corporation, looked into the crystal recently and came forth with the prediction that sales would be between 2,750,000 and 3,500,000, allowing thus for a latitude of 750,000 units.

R. H. Grant, vice president in charge of sales for General Motors, was less specific as to figures, but foresaw the likelihood of a rise of 25 to 35 per cent. With customary caution, Alfred

P. Sloan Jr., chairman of the board of General Motors, said: "Based on statistics, if general business improves, it is fair to assume that the automobile tusiness will im-prove with it."

Lens and Shutter-Camera News

If your technique is off and you get a headache over proper exposure, you should take time out to read this column of news about Atlanta camera fans, which is ap-pearing in The Constitution as a regular weekly feature. Sponsored by the Atlanta Camera Club, this column is designed for all amateur photographers. The Atlanta Cam-era Club itself is an amateur or-ganization composed of 70 candid gantzation composed of 70 canala shot enthusiasts interested in bet-ter photography. Whether you know a shutter from a lens you, too, can join the club and take part in its activities, which include educational lectures, pictures com-petitions and traveling exhibits. All amateur photograpers are in-vited to submit their best candia photographs to the Picture Editor of The Constitution for use in this column each Sunday.

When a wildly skidding automobile veered off the slippery Lake-wood track last Sunday and crashed into the fence, there much gnashing of teeth among the photographers assembled at the track's turn. The accident occurred in the first lap of the first race and many of the lensmen weren't prepared for the dramatic shot. The Constitution's splendid view of the incident was easily the best one seen so far.

Photographers who stand on the dangerous turn of the track may think back longingly to the days when a convenient tree grew on the edge of the oval and in this foliage, harassed shutter-snappers could get a point of vantage with a reasonable amount of safety as well. One day, however, a car out of control smashed itself solidly into the tree and it is related that photographers came tumbling out like apples. The tree is no more, and today the photogs wild cars as well as agile of eve to snap the action that transpires

Gentleman John Mauldin is reported to be a fearless individual when he faces an opponent in the wrestling ring. When he faces an audience of a hundred photographers, however, Gentleman John is apt to get lens-fright and become extremely timid. Tomorrow night just such an experience awaits this muscle-man when he poses for the Camera Club members in their monthly staging of an interesting subject. Poses reminis-cent of those adopted by Roman gladiators will be arranged for the barrage of cameras that are to be trained on Mauldin. At the following meeting, a prize is awarded for the photograph that is best from a technical and artistic standpoint.

Irving Miller is proudly exhibiting a roll of film that he developed in a new "soup" that contains both developer and fixer in one solution. Heretofore two solutions first a developer and then a fixing bath, have been required and this new material will cut down the time necessary to process a film. Irving says that now his problem is what to do with the extra 10 be spent in heated discussion on some subject of photography, for no other hobby seems to lend itself to such protracted conversa-

Club night and for the first time the club will meet in its new headquarters at Rich's. Principal speaker of the evening will be James H. Bradley, who will talk on "Filters—How and When To Use Them." Filters are a sub-ject that puzzle every amateur at one time or another, and Bardto answer the questions that surround choice of filters. A series of specially prepared specimen photographs will be used to illustrate the possibilities of a variety of filters.

The club's own picture competition on the subject, "In the Park," will be on display and prizes are to be awarded the winner in last month's judging. The meeting gets under way at 7:30 o'clock and any interested amateur is invited to attend the

Miss Nannette Hopkins Resigns as Dean of Agnes Scott PRINTERS DEBATE

Two Members of Faculty Elected To Replace Veteran Educator.

The resignation of Miss Nannette Hopkins as dean of Agnes Scott College after approximately 50 years of service at the institution was announced yesterday by Dr. J. R. McCain, president of Agnes Scott.

The trustees of the college elected Miss Hopkins dean emeritus and divided her duties among two members of the faculty. Dr. S. G. Stukes was chosen an of the faculty and Miss Carrie Scandrett was elected dean of students.

Miss Hopkins was the first teacher chosen when Agnes Scott was founded as the Decatur Female Seminary in 1089. She was made principal of the school in September of that year, and continued in that capacity until 1897, when Dr. F. H. Gaines was elected president and Miss Hopkins was made dean. She had held that post

Advisory Relationship.
The trustees, faculty and students of Agnes Scott were anxious for Miss Hopkins to round out her 50th year of active service in 1939, but, while she is not sick, her physicians advised her to ease up on her activities. She will continue in an advisory relationship and as a member of the board of

Few people in the educational history of the United States have had an experience as unique as that of Miss Hopkins. When she began her connection with Agnes Scott the school was just on paper—a subscription list of $5,000. She led and inspired the improvements from a day school of grammar grade level to an academy of high school stage, then an institute of junior college standing and finally into a college of high rank. She arranged the assignment of rooms and roommates for more than 7.000

Announcement of Green Speech Tomorrow Touches Off Convention Barrage.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Sept. 10. UP)-Delegates representing 80,-000 union printers were divided tonight in an attack on the executive council of the American Federation of Labor as the International Typographical Union began its 82d convention.

A barrage of resolutions against the AFL was touched off by an-nouncement that William Green, president of the federation, would address the convention Monday. A plan for uniting the Committee for Industrial Organization with the AFL was introduced in a resolution by Frank Cozzolino, of New York. The resolution called on the federation to "cease and desist from interference" with the CIO and proposed creation of a department within the AFL council to "administer the functions of the CIO." Cozzolino said his plan would admit the CIO TO BEGIN OPERATION "into our ranks on equal terms and in a body, thereby uniting labor."

Helpmeets of 8 Aspirants Have Charm and Grace

By YOLANDE GWIN. Meet the wife of:

Senator Walter F. George, Law rence Camp, Eugene Talmadge and William G. McRae. Which one will be Georgia's representative in the Senate Ladies' Luncheon Club in Washington?

And meet the wife of: E. D. Rivers, Hugh Howell, John Mangham and Robert A Wood. Which will be Georgia's First Lady for the coming two years?

When President Roosevelt went into office in March, 1933, Mrs. Walter F. George did not accompany her husband to Washington the inauguration.

Instead, she stayed down in Vi-enna and remodeled a four-room tenant house which she now calls That's the type woman the wife of the senior senator is.
She loves her home and admits that when the congressional sea-son is drawing to a close she reson is drawing to a close sne returns to Georgia several weeks in advance of the senator to get "everything ready." Only a house-keeper knows what that means. Of her home soft-speaking Mrs. George says:

"I always wanted a home like the one we have now. I saw this tenant house and at once saw the possibilities. I added a porch, bath, kitchen and sleeping porch It's Dutch colonial, and I love it!'

The gracious wife of the senior senator admits that she is a "homebody" and that her only ob-jection to official life is that she cannot do "what she wants to, when she wants to," all the time. For the past 16 years, however, Mrs. George has graced the role of a senator's wife with distinctive traits which have won for her an undisputed place in Washington's social circles.

Miss Williams Weds Mr. Mason

A wedding of interest to a wide circle of friends was that of Miss Tommie Williams and Hugh C. Mason, which was quietly sol-emnized in the afternoon of Sep-tember 3 at the home of the officiating minister, Rev. Harold Shields, pastor of Gordon Street Presbyterian church, in the presence of the immediate families.

The bride wore an ensemble of teal blue with burgundy accessories. She wore a shoulder bouquet of orchids.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. McKee were attendants.

Mrs. Mason is the eldest daughter of Mr. Thomas H. Williams, and the late Mr. Williams. Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Walker Mason. After a short wedding trip the bridal couple will reside in West

TVA IS A SYMBOL of a Bright New Day TO MANY

Editor's Note: What is the TVA? Big dams in a river, producing electric power, yes, but what behind them? John Lear, Associated Press reporter, spent a week in the Tennessee Valley to find out. In 1.000 miles of travel he saw the beginnings, for better or for worse, of (1) a revolution in agriculture: (2) a new industrial empire; (3) a huge experiment in ning the lives of people. He tells the story of these beginnings in a series of three stories, the first of which follows. Only time can tell the endings.

By JOHN LEAR.

NORRIS, Tenn., Sept. 10 .- (A)-A revolution in agriculture is taking place today in the Tennessee river valley.

It is one of the major products of the TVA, but its significance has passed virtually unnoticed by the average American in the tumult over power.

Farmers friendly to the movement tell of sitting up nights with their guns across their knees to stop privately owned power companies from erecting power lines. Farmers resentful of the TVA tell of equally spirited action on the other side, and their opposition is still encountered. But this farm revolution is fundamentally peaceful.

The affect its advocates claim for it to date is

1. To lift the farmer's productiveness and purchasing power. 2. To bring him comfort and leisure where he had only hardship and toil.

3. To rebuild the earth on which his future security depends. These represent basic change to the people of this hill country, yet outside the Tennessee valley little is heard of them. The reason apparently is that they are unspectacular in a world the popular imagination has built of spectacular things. The average person thinks of the TVA in terms of water thundering over majestic piles of concrete and steel, of huge lakes drowning out valleys which once were filled with people, of sweeping floods held back by the pny fingers of man, and, perhaps, of some misty genii striding from the bowl of a modern Aladdin's lamp with cheap power in his But there is nothing sensational about fertilizer being strewn across a field.

There is nothing dramatic about a power line being strung across a hill.

And fertilizer and power lines are the weapons of this farm revolution.

The fertilizer is of more immediate practical importance than the power lines, for fertilizer saves the soil. As one TVA man expressed it: "Unless something is done soon to save the soil, there will be no soil left. No soil, no farms. No farms, no cities. No farms, no cities, no civilization.

What good would power be then?"

Fertilizer in this case is phosphate, which has been used before, in more violent form, in revolutions. It will be used in violent form again if war comes to the United States and the power plants of TVA's Wilson Dam at Muscle Shoal, Ala., return to their original purpose: Manufacture of munitions.

For phosphate means phosphorus, and phosphorus means smoke screens and fire bombs to set cities

But these are peace times here, and the phosphates which were intended for war are being used for peace. They are being used, among other places, on the fields of T. A. Foster's farm, out in Grainer county, Tennessee.

Before the TVA appeared on his horizon, Farmer Foster planted his 126 1-2 acres with cash crops -wheat, corn, tobacco, cotton-right up to the tops of the hills. Yet in 1935 his income was $307 less than his expenditures and the depleted earth on the hillsides, with nothing to hold it, was being washed away by the rain.

That was the year the county farm agent came around and said "Tom, how about trying out some of this new fertilizer the TVA is making? You can get it through the university farm extension service, and it will cost you only the freight and handling charges if you'll rotate your crops and put some of your land in legumes." "Tom" wanted to know what advantage the TVA phosphate was over other phosphates, and the farm agent explained it had been developed to contain 63 per cent plant food compared to 16 per cent in the older fertilizers and that it made alfalfa grow four to five times as They talked awhile, and Farmer Foster agreed to try the thing out for the benefit of himself and the neighbors.

The fertilizer came, and "Tom" Foster and his son, Guy "Tom," spread it over that part of the land they had set aside for clover, alfalfa and the alfalfa substitute from Japan, lespedeza. Instead of devoting all their attention to cash crops, as they had done, they put more effort into poultry, cattle and hogs. When Farmer Foster balanced his books in 1936. he found a profit of $921, four times better than his 1935 balance. Part of this was due to an unusually good price for tobacco, but in 1937 the farm profit still was up to $558, almost three times as much as 1935. That is the story as Foster told it, while we tramped across his fields together.

The figures were fine from Foster's standpoint. Equally important in the long-range view of the was the effect on Foster's land. Deep gullies in the hills, the result of years of erosion, were filling up again with fertile earth, thanks to terraces dug by tractors hired co-operatively by Foster and nearby farmers. And the clover, alfalfa and lespedeza were holding the restored soil down and rebuilding it with nitrogen to enrich future yields of corn and wheat when their turn came in the

The TVA fertilizer went to others than Farmer Foster. It went to W. A. Killion, whose 96 acres I found in Jefferson county, across a range of hills in a different type of land from Foster's. Killion's farm in 1935 earned $29 less than he paid out in taxes and upkeep. When he joined the "super-phosphate" program his books improved 1936: Income, $1,040; expenses, $753. 1937: Income, $1,879; expenses, $1,124. His crop yields went up like this:

Corn: 1935, 30 bushels per acre; 1937, 33 bushels per acre. Tobacco: 1935, 1,197 pounds; 1937, 1,567 pounds. Wheat: 1935, 15 bushels per acre; 1937, 20 bush-

The same phosphorus which enriched his soil improved his livestock through better feed, and the income from his cows, his pigs and his poultry rose from $382 in 1935, to $671 in 1936, to $747 in 1937. While his income was going up, he was keeping more and more of his land in soil-saving legumes, which meant still more money from the federal government. His payments for participation in the crop control program increased from $24 in 1935 to Picture 18,000 demonstration farms like those of Foster and Killion and you will have some idea of the extent of the change TVA phosphates are making in the rural economy of the seven states (Alabama, Georgia, Kentucky, Mississippi, North Carolina, Tennessee and Virginia) in the chicken-wing-shaped valley of the Tennessee. Add 4,800 more farms to these 18,000 and scatter them over 350 counties in 20 states from the Pacific to the gulf and back to New Hampshire and you have an in-dication of how far the thing has gone already on a national scale. In all, there are three and one-third million acres planted in this gigantic experi-

The crop rotation theory underlying this movenot new. The contribution claimed by the TVA is to make it practicable among many farmers who up to now for many reasons could not make a living without planting all their land in cash crops. TWO SCHOOLS OF THOUGHT.

It is too early yet to tell the value of this phase of the newborn farm program, for there are widely divergent schools of thought in the matter.

One favorable to the TVA's purposes, contends that the $8,000,000 spent on the prosphate-farm program up to June 30, 1937—the last fiscal year for which official figures are now available small amount to pay if it means rebuilding a de-

The other, challenging TVA's efficiency, says the taxpayer's money is being spent recklessly.

Part of the question may be answered by the TVA congressional investigating committee which has before it two items in evidence among others: (a) Representative Thomas A. Jenkins, Repu Ohio, charges that phosphates can be bought in Florida for 62 cents a unit whereas they cost TVA 68 1-2 cents a unit, and TVA's answer that part of the cost goes into improvement of the product; and (b) TVA's admission that it paid $680,000 in 1937 for 570 acres of phosphat land which had sold for about $150,000 between 1934 and 1936, and TVA's insistence it was a sound business transaction made in good faith. If the final verdict is as favorable to the TVA as some of the "demonstration" farmers are convinced it will be, the Democrats cannot claim all the credit, even though the TVA is a New Deal agency. For the state farm extension schools, which are carrying on the vast educational link between TVA and the farmers, were established by Abraham Lincoln, a Republican.

The county farm agents who form the backbone of the farm extension service also are playing a major role in the second phase of the new agriculture-electric power.

It is this phase which has stirred up most of the controversy over TVA in the supreme court and lesser courts. The battle still continues, vate power companies defending their territories against TVA invasion and fighting establishment of TVA rates as a "yardstick" for rates elsewhere. The "yardstick" question is only now coming a decisive test, in Knoxville, Tenn., where the vity and the TVA last month took over the entire elec-tric system of the Tennessee Public Service Com-pany. The TVA frankly regards Knoxville as the proving ground for its contention that its rates are not a matter of "guess work"—as some private utilities assert—but are sound and fair and productive of profit despite their low scale.

The power companies are not alone in their antagonism to the TVA's advance. As you travel across the countryside you still hear of resentment (TVA says it is gradually dying out) against the TVA's sweeping changes in a land that has been the same for generations. This is particularly true in the back country, where the mountain folk are known for their individualism. People who did not want to move were moved from farms which later engaged in construction of the Norris Dam is shown at right, above. The picture at right, center, is of Wilson Dam, Muscle Shoals. TVA's experimental plant at Wilson Dam for making phosphoric acid used in the manufacture of fertilizer, is pictured were flooded in the big dams. A common complaint is "They didn't pay me what my land was worth when they took it to build that road." Power lines were strung across fields where sometin they were not wanted.

In the TVA's plan for soil conservation, power dovetails like a piece in a jig-saw puzzle. When legumes are used to complement other farm crops, the TVA agricultural experts say, electrical farm machinery becomes not only useful but economical and often profitable. The balanced farming which is the TVA ideal means cows, hogs and chickens in addition to food crops. Cows, hogs and chickens need water and feed. Water can be supplied easiest with electric pumps, and feed can be ground with electric mills. Hay, which now costs Tennessee valley farmers $8,000,000 a year from rain damage, can (the TVA men say) be cured quickly without that loss with electric driers. Cows mean milk, which (to the TVA) means electris milkers and separators. Milk means butter, which can be kept with the milk in electric refrigerators until sufficient volume has accumulated for profitable sale. Chickens mean eggs, which means chicks, which mean electric incubators and brooders. Pigs mean pork, which means more elec-tric refrigerators to help the south keep its own fresh meat instead of buying most of it from other parts of the country.

As an example of how completely a farm can be electrified, the TVA referred to the northwest Georgia acres of J. S. Christian. In addition to having electric lights in his house, Farmer Christian has electric number electric hards and the charter of the country of the charter has electric pumps, electric milkers, electric sepa-rators, electric churn, electric refrigerators and electric bottle washers, not to mention an electric fence to keep his cows in pasture and an electric flytrap to keep his dairy barn free of flies.

Farmer Christian, one of a comparative few who can boast of such an assortment of power equipment in the valley, cannot quite get over what electricity has done for him. He transfixed me against the side of his barn, like a bug on a pin, and lectured about it. He showed books with the information that for every kilowatt of power he used in 1937 he profited 25 cents.

He had turned a wholesale milk business which brought him $89 to $95 every two weeks into a retail milk business which brought him $27 to $30 a day. He paid off $1,500 expenses, bought an electric range, water heater and new kitchen sink, and put $3,000 in the bank—in two years' time.

He also tried out TVA's phosphate and increased his legume production from 10 to 50 bushels an acre. His tenant farmer, who had given up the farm as a failure, moved back with enthusiasm.

Brilliant Musical Season Opens in Atlanta

Above are five of the artists who will appear in the All-Star Concert Series and the Atlanta Music Club Series during from left to right are: Lily Pons, coloratura soprano, who will open the season in the All-Star Concert Series, with a concert at the new city auditorium on Monday night, October 3; Jose Iturbi, sensational Spanish planist, who will open the Music Club Series three nights later, October 6, at the Atlanta Woman's Club auditorium. Next are Helen Jepson, soprano, and Nino Martini, tenor, who will be the second attraction of the All-Star Series, giving a joint concert on October 22. The fifth picture is of Sigrid Onegin, considered one of the greatest living contraltos, who is another of the Music Club artists, appearing on February 21.

By MOZELLE HORTON YOUNG.

The Atlanta 1938-39 concert season, opening officially with Lily Pons' concert in the new city auditorium October 3, will undoubtedly be the greatest and most brilliant season in Atlanta's musical history. Not only does the imposing list of the world's most famous artists to be presented make this prediction clear. In addition to the brillance of the array of stars, the fact that the larger concerts will be given in the new and beautiful city auditorium, with its approximately 6,000 seating capacity, adds new zest to the season

And keeping abreast with the enthusiasm are the various clubs of the city, for this season they have arranged more interesting and more ambitious local programs than ever before.

Musical America, watch Atlanta's stride! The All-Star Concert Series opens its eighth season in Atlanta with the most brilliant and the most popular array of world-renowned stars it has offered in its history.

It is interesting to know that the Atlanta All-Star Concert Series is the most popular concert course in the whole United States.

Lily Pons, coloratura soprano, famed for her phenomenal voice in opera, concert, radio and on the screen, will open the season on Monday night, October 3. Frank LaForge, famous teacher and coach, will be her accompanist. Helen Jepson, soprano, and Nino Martini, tenor, both of Metro-politan fame, will give a joint concert Saturday night, October 22. The Monte Carlo Ballet Russe will appear on Tuesday night, November 22; Jascha Heifetz, violinist, on Thursday night, December 15; the Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra, Eugene Ormandy conducting, on Saturday night, January 14; Josef Hofmann, pianist, Friday night, January 27; and Grace Moore, Wednesday night, March 1.

The Atlanta Music Club, under the presidency of Mrs. Harold Cooledge, opens the annual Membership Week of the club tomorrow, when music lovers will engage their memberships to the club, which entitle them to attendance at three "imported" artist concerts and six concerts given by local artists.

The three star concerts of the season will be Jose Iturbi, world-famous Spanish pianist and conductor, on Thursday night, October 6; the Kolisch Quartet, Tuesday night, December 13, and Sigrid Onegin, contralto, on Tuesday night, February 21. All the club's concerts will be given in the auditorium of the Atlanta Woman's Club.

With Mrs. John B. Guerry, of Montezuma and Atlanta, as president, the Georgia Federation of Music Clubs looks forward to a successful year.

The first public activity of the season will be the booth that the federation will have at the South-eastern Fair October 2-9. On October 8 contests in piano, violin and voice will be held at the fair, with contestants from all over the state taking part. Other events in October will be a counselors luncheon and meeting in Atlanta, and an executive board meeting in Athens, the definite dates of both to be announced later.

The annual doll festival, a feature of the junior the federation for several years, inaugurated by Miss Evelyn Jackson, to which young musi-cians bring a doll for poor children for Christmas, and will be held in Atlanta in December.

The annual MacDowell festival, also inaugurated by Miss Jackson, will be held in Atlanta in Jandent musicians will be in March.

But the BIG DATE of the entire season will be the state junior convention to be held in Atlanta March 16-19. Children from all parts of the state, ranging in ages from 6 to 18, will compete in contests of many classifications. These junior conventions are held every two years, and there is always much excitement throughout the season among the children musicians, preparing for and anticipating

The concerto festival, another valuable feature of the organization's work originated by Miss Jackson, will be in May, also in Atlanta. At this festival young musicians are given the opportunity to play a concerto with an orchestra. The experience is invaluable.

The Atlanta Philharmonic Society, William Arnaud, president, will begin rehearsals of both its units, the Atlanta Philharmonic Orchestra, Georg F. Lindner, conductor, and the Atlanta Philharmonic Singers, John D. Hoffman, director, on Monday night, September 19.

The orchestra, Mr. Lindner tells me, plans to give two concerts of symphonic music and to combine with the chorus in giving two concerts during the Plans are for the orchestra to play at least one of the Beethoven symphonies, and to do the String Suite by Sir Edward Elgar, together with other favorite symphonic works.

Under the leadership of Charles Johnson, new dean of the Georgia Chapter of the American Guild of Organists, this organization plans one of the best seasons in its history.

Among the innovations that Mr. Johnson expects to introduce in the programs during his re-gime will be the presentation of a choral group of high school students in some large choral work with the organ accompaniment. Anne Grace O'Callaghan will train and direct this group. Miss O'Callaghan is the director of music in the Atlanta high schools

The annual Guild service will be held on Monday night, November 14, at the Druid Hills Methodist church, with Ethel Beyer, organist and choir director, in charge of the program, presenting the choir of the church.

"Many of our members are asking for the re-turn of Virgil Fox, who already has a large followwith Mr. Fox have been delayed by the fact that has been fulfilling engagements in Europe. If Mr. Fox is available, a concert by him will probbooked for January. If we do not succeed in getting him, we will present another of the country's foremost organists.'

The fourth annual program of modernistic organ music, on which members of the local chapter collaborate, will be presented in February. Four seasons ago when the chapter decided to present its first program made up entirely of modern organ music, some half-dozen members good-naturedly agreed to perform with a sort of tongue-in-their-cheek attitude, for they were practically sure that neither the chapter as a whole or the public would like a whole program of ultra-modern music on the pipe organ. But much to their amazement, both organists and the public were wildly enthusiastic about it, and the program has become an annual affair by public demand, and largely attended.

The Thursday Morning Music Club has chosen for its year's work a study course, and programs based on the book "Our American Music." by John Tasker Howard. Marion Keelin, president of the club, and Agnes Adams Stokes, first vice president and program chairman, have arranged the programs

The series will begin with the October program

(on the second Thursday morning), the discussion being "What Is American Music? Who Is an American Composer? Our Beginnings in Sacred Music and in Secular Music." The November program will be on "Early 19th Century Song and Ballard Composers." The December program will be on "19th Century Concert Life and Its Music." "The Spread of Musical Culture" will be the January study, and the February program will feature the life and works of Nevin and MacDowell. The March program will discuss "Our Folk Music and the Composers Who Have Used It." And the final program of the series will be on "Contemporary Composers." There will be instrumental and vocal numbers illustrating the discussions on each pro-

In addition to this series of study programs, the club will present three evening musicales, in No-vember, February and April, with guest artists sharing the programs with club members.

The Thursday Morning Music Club is composed of a small group of congenial musicians of the city, who enjoy studying together and performing for each other. One of the requirements of membership is a performance on at least one program dur-ing the season. The membership includes Bonita Crowe, Lenus Daniell, Emilie Parmalee, Rubye Head Lewis, Margie Griffith, Marion Keelin, Louise Browne, Mary Douglass, Senta Mueller, Bertha Pat-terson, Agnes Adams Stokes, Mildred Brown Bourne, Louisa Wicker Allensworth, Winnifred Hopkins, Sarah Horne, Mary Martin, Jessie Richardson and Frances Stukes.

Anne Grace O'Callaghan, director of music in Anne Grace O'Callaghan, director of music in the Atlanta high schools, and Ruth Weegand, di-rector of music in the elementary schools, have each developed a series of plans that should send Atlanta schools way ahead in musical accomplishment and education,

In both the high and elementary schools, instrumental music will be stressed more than ever before. The In-and-About Atlanta High School Orwill begin rehearsals at an early date in preparation for another gala concert to be given the latter part of January or early in February, with Dr. Joseph Maddy as guest conductor. One of the features of this program will be a violin choir the features of the program will be a violin choir the features of the program will be a violin choire. with younger violin students taking p compositions in four parts. A selected high school choir will also have a part on the program.

Interesting news is that a group of new teachers of instrumental music, teachers of orchestral and and instruments, have been added to the faculties of the high schools. Ben Logan Fiske will be at Commercial High; Evelyn Brecht at Murphy Junior High; Owen Seitz at O'Keefe Junior High; Jimmie an at Joe Brown Junior High, and Charles White at Hoke Smith Junior High. The teachers of choral singing and public school music remain the same as before except that at Bass Junior High Clarence Ehrhardt will have charge of the choral work.

In her year's program Miss Weegand will emp phasize instrumental and piano training for the elementary school children, preparing them for fu-ture orchestra players. She will give the annual festival concert in the spring, with the children forming a massed chorus, and she will also present a number of children's choruses on the program of the American Childhood Education Convention to be held in Atlanta in the spring, and on the program of the Georgia Educational Association, also to be in Atlanta.

Mu Omega Chapter of Mu Phi Epsilon, national music honor sorority, received its charter and became an active musical organization of the Atlanta Conservatory of Music on November 13, 1926, with Hazel Wood as its first president. On September 28, Mu Omega will hold its first meeting for the season 1938-39, with Willa Beckham Lowrance as its president. Its meetings will be on the second and fourth Wednesdays of each month, one meeting being a business session and one a musical program.

Mu Phi Epsilon is a national music honor sorority ranking in the musical world with Phi Beta Kappa in the literary world. It stands for the highest musical attainment and for the advancement of music throughout all colleges and universities in the United States. It includes in its membership many outstanding women musicians as Madame Schuman-Heink, Ethel Leginska and Ebba Sundstrom, the latter two both famous women conductors, and Katherine Ford, who per-formed for the Atlanta Music Club on the double keyboard. It lists among its patrons such celebrities as Rudolph Ganz and Alex Templeton.

The Atlanta Alumnae Chapter of Mu Phi Epsilon was formed and installed last December, with Frances Collins Hutcheson as the first president. Mrs. Hutcheson was re-elected for this season. Bonita Crowe is vice president; Dorothy Hyatt, secretary; Lucile Scarborough, treasurer; Margie Griffith, his-torian, and Caroline Hall, chaplain and warden.

The Alumnae Club is made up of Mu Phi Epsilon members who are not active in Mu Omega Chapter or who have moved to Atlanta from other

The College Park Music Club, Dixie Stevens, president, will make a sort of musical tour around the world this season. The countries they will visit, musically speaking, on their programs will be Spain Italy, France, Belgium, Japan, China, England, Ireland, Russia, Germany, Austria, Scandinavia and America. The first executive board meeting of the season was held Wednesday afternoon. The first club meeting will be October 12, all programs to be at the College Park Woman's Club house. There will be a repetition of last year's "Birthday Party."

The club celebrated its 16th birthday with a gala banquet, The Young Artists Club, division of the Atlanta Music Club, plans a brilliant season. Elizabeth Jackson, president; Mozelle Horton Young, pro-gram chairman, and Alice Gray Harrison, co-chairman, have spent many hours together during the nmer planning programs, and the entire season's schedule has been mapped out in detail.

The first program will be a brilliant introduction to the series. Of a miscellaneous character, it will feature some of the most gifted young artists of the city. It will be given on the fourth Tuesday night in October.

After this first program most of the musicales will feature the compositions of different national schools. The November program will feature the French school of composition. The December program will deviate from the "nationality" idea, and will be a program of Christmas music, given under the direction of Emilie Parmalee, at North Avenue Presbyterian church. The January program will combine the Italian and Spanish schools. In February, the club will exchange programs with the Athens Young Artists Club, of which Robert Harrison is president. The March program will be made up of compositions by German composers, classic and modern, while the April musicale will present Russian composers. The finale to the year's series will be a program entirely by American com-

A definite and deep loss will be felt in Atlanta's musical life when Mrs. John W. Ware moves her residence to Memphis, Tenn. For 26 years Mrs. Ware has been one of the outstanding piano teachers in Atlanta. She has taught many outstanding pupils who have gone out over the state and the south and made brilliant careers for themselves.

Mrs. Ware is a charter member of Mu Omega Chapter of Mu Phi Epsilon, national honor music sorority. Eleven of her own pupils are her sorority sisters. She is also a charter member of the sorority. Eleven of her own pupils are her so-rority sisters. She is also a charter member of the Atlanta Music Club.

Mrs. William Elsas is chairman of music for the Studio Club. She is planning four large musicales during the season. The first of these will be presented in November at the High Museum of Art, and will feature a program correlating music with art. Lamar Dodd, head of the art department of the University of Georgia, will have an exhibition at the museum at that time, and will have a part on the program, explaining his pictures and lecturing

Details of the other programs will be announced

Atlanta Women Comment On World's Most Intelligent

By LUKE GREENE.

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt and Madame Chiang Kai-shek are two of the most intelligent women in the world, in the opinion of Atlanta women leaders. Their views on the brainy members of their sex came as a result of a recent selection of the five most intelligent women in the universe by Presi-dent Henry Noble MacCracken, of Vassar College. The educator's selection included Angelica Balabanoff, voluntary exile from Italy and Russia; Sarojini Naidu, champion of independence in In-dia; Halidah Edib, Turkish publicist and novelist; Mrs. Roosevelt, and Madame Chiang Kai-shek, wife of the Chinese leader. Atlanta women are not very well acquainted with the accomplishments of the first three named but they generally agreed that the latter two should be included in such a selection.

One prominent leader ventured the statement that Mrs. Roosevelt was "smarter" than her illustrious husband, the President himself, and several others pointed out that both Mrs. Roosevelt and Mrs. Chiang Kai-shek had been great influences in the careers of their husbands.

Here are the opinions as expressed by the At-Mrs. Alonzo Richardson, secretary of the City

Board of Review and Censors:

"The only one I know intimately is Mrs. Roose-velt—I once talked to one of her secretaries. I think she is a remarkable woman in many ways, I also have a high regard for Madame Chiang Kaishek. If I were asked to add any to the list I believe I would name Judge Florence Allen, of "Madame Chiang Kai-shek certainly deserves such a ranking. Her education has been very thorough. She even came over to our own country and took top honors. She has been a great help in shaping the influence of her distinguished husband. Mrs. Roosevelt also is very unusual-in that she is so energetic.'

And in my opinion Sarojini Naidu has done more for India than any man. All of Dr. Mac-Cracken's selections have a wonderful background,

THE LIGHT THAT IS SET ON A MOUNTAIN

"The Light in the Mountains," as the school is justly known, drew mountain people swarming to it from miles around and varied were the products bartered for "book larning." Each child had brought what he had; each was doing the best he could.

At one end of the porch the children, with their parents, were being graciously received by Mrs. Z. f. Fitzpatrick, executive vice president of the board of trustees and resident in charge. Affectionately called the "Duchess of Tallulah," Mrs. Fitzpatrick already knew the folk for she personally interviews each child, learns all about him before he can come to this registration which was being conducted at the other end of the porch by Miss Blanche Dodson, school secretary and past graduate of Tallulah.

A pretty high school girl with peach preserves and a basket of tomatoes was enrolling; she was anxious to know the mysteries of weaving taught in the craft shop. She took her provender to the door of the large kitchen where the housekeeper was making a list—who brought what and how much. When at least 150 growing boys and girls are to be fed three times a day, Tallulah can use the food. Later in the fall there will be pumpkins and pigs brought. In all the years of Tallulah a pampkin has never had to be bought for Thanksgiving dinner! From the distant lot was heard the bray of Frank Tallulah, an old mule "fotched down' years ago by two brothers who traded the 'critter'

The fragrant pine air was tense with anticipated excitement; school would open tomorrow. On Labor Day? Yes, there was no Labor Day here. There were no mills, no factories, no business offices—only wide acres, a flop-eared mule or a yoke of long-horned oxen, a plow and rutty red clay. Scattered farms sprawl across the lowlands.

But through the steep mountains the lean earth only a crust on solid rock. Here and there are cabins from which come little children with frightened bewildered eyes and empty hands. The cabin children also stand in the registration line, for scholarships, provided by kind friends of the school, are supplying them with the $150 needed for nine months in the comfortable dormitories: nine months of wholesome food and all the learning they can

A barefooted tot of 6 years confided, "I from a leaky lil' ole' house. Hit's over yonder." He pointed to the blue mountains that vanish in the skyline. And he knew that back "over yonder' 'the fastness of the dark forest grasped cabins crowded with children as eager as he for "larning." Even the brother and sisters of these very children were hopelessly unable to come. There were just so many scholarships-no more had been given.

In the veins of these mountain children is the purest Anglo-Saxon blood. After the Revolutionary War, the state of Georgia honored many of the bravest soldiers by giving them land grants. The soldiers brought their families down from Virginia and the Carolinas to settle in the mountains surrounding the great Tallulah falls. Intermarrying for generations after generations, they remained in the mountains.

Exempt from civilization, much of the mode of living is little changed from pioneer days. The handsome descendants from the spirit of '76 show their clear lineage by their golden hair, bright blue eyes, their fierce loyalty and keenmindness. Here real Americans that have been tucked away in the mountains are being discovered by Tallulah and put into circulation.

Many of these students have worked their way through college degrees and it is amazing to find how Tallulah graduates are living lives of bless-ing spreading. Here are a few you will want to Jessie Lawrence, who was given the title of "Spirit of Tallulah," now Mrs. Louis Denny, is librarian for the blind at Carnegie, here in Atlanta. Maude Fretwell is teacher of crafts at the Georgia State College for the Blind at Macon, Norman Taylor is in charge of vocational therapy at Milledgeville, and Robert Burch preceded Taylor.

There is James Taylor, secretary-treasurer for Piedmont College; Grady Nixon, who helped draft the plans for the bridge to span Tallulah gorge, and Clarence Burton, principal at the Lakemont school and a minister as well. There are so many others who are carrying the light from Tallulah out into the world and back into the mountain. Eliza Shir-ley, a direct descendant of Whitfield, that historic minister closely associated with General Ogle-thorpe, has become a graduate nurse taking help to the mountain people. Last winter alone she nursed 15 cases of pneumonia!

The unselfishness of the Tallulah school has been recognized and awarded. Only last fall a bronze plaque was issued the school for unselfishness by the Algernon Sydney Sullivan memorial committee of the New York Southern Society, established 1907. The honor plaque hangs in the hall outside the dining room.

By Sunday night most of the boarding pupils had gotten established in one of the 15 unit buildings that are on the side of Cherokee mountain. The architecture of the Tallulah houses is in accord with the rustic surroundings—brown-star d board houses with natural rock foundation and trim. Equipped with modern conveniences, even the artistic paths are lighted by electric lights. The curtains at the windows, the rugs on the floor, the decorative tapestries on the walls are all handmade products of the craft shop. These are beautiful creations, a practical and helpful art to know.

The Monday morning that school began, the rising bell rung at 6 o'clock—it was the old farm bell pulled by a chain in the kitchen. The yellow dog, "Tramp," chief pet of the school, joined the clanging with his howls. If one didn't wake every child, the other did. Breakfast was served at 7.

Into the dining room poured all the children from the first grade age to high school seniors. The long tables were filled; at each table a faculty member was hostess. As one voice the Lord's Prayer was said. A scripture verse was read and commented upon. A pupil was called on to say grace and every voice murmured the "amen."

Then breakfast was served by the student girls.

themselves—a group of servers is appointed for a three-week period. There were "breakfast cooks," who were chosen the night before from the experienced pupils of last term, and one or two from the summer helpers who had been at the school can-ning watermelon rind pickle and a host of other goodies which fill the rock storehouse.

The dining hall is a delightful room where are white tables and chairs, gay homespun curtains and bright dahlias, and over the rough rock mantelpiece there is a large mural painted by Annie Fawnsworth Drew showing a gnarled pine on the edge of Night has fallen. The day's work is over. From the boys' dormitory strains of music float over the mountain stillness. The self-assembled band is playing, and the boys are singing, an old song.

After breakfast the children returned to their dormitories, made their beds and tidied the rooms. But long before breakfast the day pupils began arriving. They came in mule-drawn, weather-beaten wagons and dilapidated old autos that had known many miles over rocky mountain trails. few stepped out of shiny cars from down in Tal-lulah village and there were many who came on foot. While the children were laughing and talking, up drove the two bright orange school buses which pick up pupils over a radius of 11 miles.

There were little barefoot boys who had spent the summer picking beans, feeding hogs and fishing. Husky and brown, these wore new overalls. There were other little boys in faded hand-medowns, spotlessly clean, but hard worn. There were tired, thin little boys from cabins so far distant that they didn't know how to join other children. Diffident and awed, they stood at the edge of the

There were little girls in colorful print cotton dresses. Hair ribbons were on their well-brushed hair; high color in their cheecks. Shoes and socks were on their skipping feet. And there were little girls like frightened wood creatures—they had come from shanties in the valley. There were little girls wise by early responsibilities; little girls five and six years older than their age would tell. Small, undernourished, barefooted, they stared out of sol-

Into the choolrooms they filed to have their books given them and to find their desks. Then at 9 o'clock the chapel bell rang and all of the 295 children marched into the Isma Dooly auditorium. It was crowded with eager children and interested parents. The 20 members of the faculty were introduced by the principal, Mr. C. L. Harrell, during the exercises and school had begun!

Another term started for a school that taught children to "know beyond books." All mornings are spent in classes learning what is on the printed page. At noon the boarding pupils walk down to the dining room for dinner; the day pupils take out

For the high school girls the afternoon is spent learning to weave in the craft shop. There are 15 looms and a spinning wheel or so. One loom and spinning wheel is over 100 years old. The clever hands of the mountain girls make material for towels and dresses, and even blankets come off the looms. They also make artistic mats from discarded silk stockings and hooked rugs, strong but dainty. The rough brown crocus sacks in which feed for cows comes, are used by the children. Dyed soft colors, the sacks are created into attractive rag rugs! So much they learn with their hands that delight the eye! Of course they learn about cooking and sewing, too. And basket-weaving is an important item—reeds from the valleys become containers of all sizes, for many uses.

While boys in the city schools are exercising on athletic fields, the Tallulah mountain boys are out on another field. For two hours each day they go into the fields, tend the crops, get their muscle-building activity and knowledge for future lands. They learn carpentry in the tool shop; later they milk the cows.

There is always an hour before supper that the students can call their own. Many seek the library, some stroll the path to the beautiful spring, sit in the old Indian rock chair to make a wish, and others play games indoors and out.

Then supper is over; the kitchen chorines have wiped the last dish and they, too, have gone to the hour study hall. The cool night has fallen. All have gone to their rooms. The mountain stillness is broken by faint strains of music from the boys' dormitories. Someone is strumming a guitar, a chorus of mouth harps follow the tune and mountain voices are singing an old song, "Gotta Walk That Lonesome Valley—Gotta' Go Thar by Your-

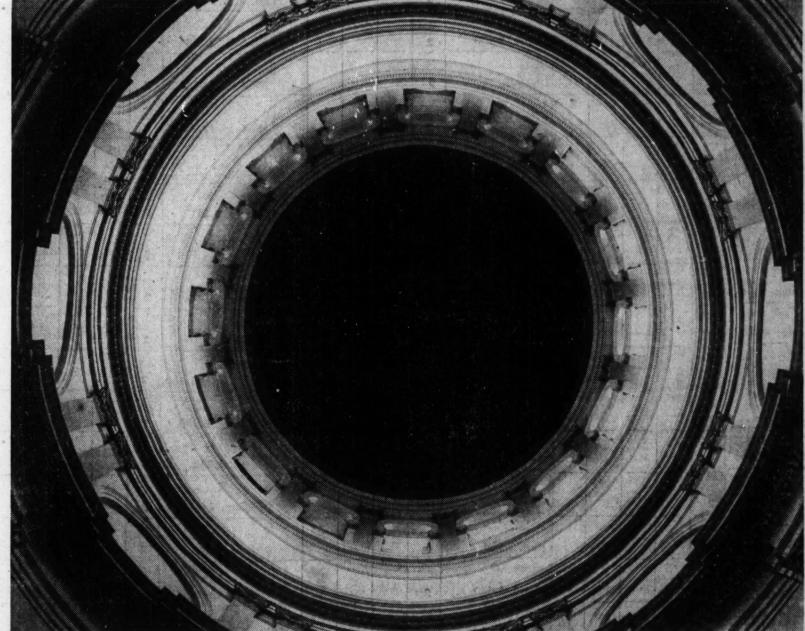

By 9:30 all is quiet, the school is sleeping. And and lifting of mountain children who have come from such places as Pop Corn mountain, Sawtooth, Hickory Nut hill, Persimmon, Chechero road and other places "over yonder." "The Light in the Mountains" is burning brightly!

"Here's 12 jars of Jelly and ma can fill two dozen more!" eagerly cried a little bright-eyed boy from Georgia's apple country. He was standing on the n Fails school for mountain afternoon, and the apple jelly he hugged in his arms was part of his tuition.

The summer harvest was coming into the unique school, one of the first to open in Georgia this fall. As a special project of the Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs, the Tallulah Falls school has Mrs. John K. Ottley for president of the board of trustees. Now in its 29th year, many children who once had no possible change of education have gone out from it trained in head, hand and heart.

(Continued from Page 1) Corporation, a co-operative in which each farmer owns at least one $10 share. The co-operative built 435 miles of its own electric line, buys power from TVA on a wholesale basis, and sells it to its members at retail prices 35 per cent below the nearby rates of private power firms. It borrowed $425,000 from the Rural Electrification Administration to pay for the lines; it is paying back the loan over 20

These co-operative members are the farmers who tell of sitting up nights with their guns across their knees to protect their "rights" in what they frankly and openly call "revolution." The guns were to stop private power companies from stringing up lines which might prove legal barriers to TVA's advance into the territory. These farmers had come to hate the privately owned utilities because, they told me, the utilities refused to supply power to farms economically before TVA arrived INCREASED POWER USAGE.

It is not necessary to belong to a co-operative, or to be a farmer, to share in the power that pours out from TVA's three currently operating plants at Norris, Wheeler and Pickwick Landing dams. In fact, the 21 municipalities in Alabama, Mississippi and Tennessee which now buy TVA power wholesale for town and city dwellers used 6,241,860 kilowatt hours of energy in May compared to 2,808,837 kilowatt hours used by the 19 co-ops which have been set up in rural areas of Alabama Georgia. Mississippi and Tennessee but it is the farmer to whom the power has meant most.

For him, smoky oil lamps have given way to brilliant electric light. Rerfrigerators have saved many families enough in food to pay the cost of instalments on the purchase. Electric ranges often have been cheaper than buying fuel or having it cut for the old wood stove. Washing machines and electric irons have brought leisure to farm women; electric pumps have done the same for the men. Bathrooms have begun to appear.

The story could continue indefinitely. There is Calloway, Georgia truck farmer, who installed electric insect traps on three acres of tomatoes. The patch yielded over 90 per cent wormfree vegetables. The crop on the balance of his 15 acres was almost a complete failure. There is D. M. Babbs, of Mississippi, who put in an electric hotbed for tomatoes. It produced 30 per cent more plants than his manure-heated beds, and required much less work. There is G. C. Harris, who invest ed in an electric sweet potato curing house. The crop sold at 15 cents a bushel above the current

There are many places like these. There are many more which receive power's benefits on a smaller scale. In scores of homes, the power supplies only lights, or perhaps lights and a radio, because the people cannot afford more.

There are also thousands of homes without power of any sort, for the TVA lines thus far have touched only a fraction of a great population. Even where the lines have been strung, there are nomes which have no share in the current, sometimes because of lack of money and sometimes because the people suspect or resent this newcomer which functions at the push of a button.

However, you guage it, this power phase of the farm revolution is only beginning. How it will end will be decided by what interpretation the people finally put on the tall steel towers which carry the electric lines across valleys and hills like an army of marching robots. The steel shines in the sunlight. To some that glint appears as a warning of "regimentation" and government "interference" in private business. To others, it is the symbol of a

The Wicked Flee ... A Short Short Story

By JACKSON DULUTH.

Trembling, the man sat in a deep arm chair in the somber room. His pale, agitated face stood forth startlingly against the shadowy background as rippling greens and reds, alternating from a huge theater sign across the roofs on Broadway, pene-trated the two closed, half-shaded windows.

The room was unaired, dusty seeming. Only the flickering colors and the rumble of traffic entered from the outer world. The man's gaze was fixed on the door. He was waiting obviously, frenziedly. Save for the deep lines which fear had wrought, his was an impressive countenance. A wide brow, sensitive, well-molded nose, a strong chin. But young-old eyes burned beneath lids so puffed as to seem beaten, and the lips were loose at the

With drawn fingers and twisted posture he sat. At last he gasped and strained even more in-tently toward the door. Soft, blanketed footsteps were audible on the carpeted stairs. Someone was approaching. Was it—was it—?

"Jane!" he exclaimed but guardedly. "She got the message," he mumbled to himself. "She's bringing the stuff. I'll get away yet!" footsteps reached the door. As an animal might, the man thrust himself from the chair and crept noiselessly forward.

Suddenly, instantly, he stopped.

There was a sharp, metallic rap as of a revolver butt upon the door.

"The cops!" he moaned, and collapsed silently on the heavy rug near the door, and died.

Colonel Georgia's Lady—the capitol—is getting a new dress.

The tailoring and fitting began last May 18, but with the heat from political races leaving politicians prostrate, many are going to be surprised along about November 15 to find "the Lady" all dressed up in new paint awaiting the return of the law-makers, lobbyists and plain ole Georgians.

The capitol's new dress is in reality a fresh coat of paint and a little repair surgery to the dome It's been needing it for a long time. The walls

The federal government thought so, too, and to the aid came the WPA. For the redecorating of the dome, the WPA workmen built the tallest interior steel scaffold in the south's history. The work on the dome has been completed now and seven miles of steel which was coupled together to make the 17-story scaffold from which the workmen repainted and repaired the interior of the historic capitol rotunda has been uncoupled and parts moved to other sections of the capitol.

The roof and the dome have been reworked. The interior is being painted. Doors have been repaired. They even open without squeaks.

Plate glass has been put in open windows. The workmen are painting the inside walls a cream color. The woodwork they are scraping. When the job is complete about the middle of November, all woodwork will show its natural grain through a clear varnish.

Climbing a remodeled dome stairway, Georgians will now reach the capitol "heights" for their birdseye view of the city and its buildings.

Where the dome was once a dull gray, it's light and inviting now—its been painted sky blue. Four shades of cream are being used on lower walls, Sam Pierce, building superintendent, said.

Just to give you an idea of the enormous job being undertaken, 2,000 gallons of paint are being used on the walls, 125 men are employed.

Completed, the job will have cost $57,000, of which the state must contribute $12,000.

But, let's back up a moment, and see how "the Lady's" dress was fitted.

The 174-foot scaffold to reach the dome top was constructed under the direction of Birger Odegaard, who has superintended the erection of scaffolding for the Empire State and Chrysler buildings and many other skyscrapers. He says the scaffolding inside the capitol rotunda was the highest interior one ever erected in the south.

The structure consisted of uprights and crossmembers of tubular steel held together by patented couplings to make it rigid. Odegaard said the scaffolding is capable of bearing "tons and tons"

Temporary flooring of 6x10-inch planks were laid at six-foot levels from the ground floor to dome-top, from which the workmen do the repair and paint jobs.

"It's a big job, but she's agonna' look mighty pretty when it's finished," Ray A. Hutchins, general project supervisor of the WPA in charge of the project, declared.

"People already stop to admire things of beauty about the capitol which they never noticed before," he continued. "Even the young folks find added pleasure in climbing the dome and looking out over the city. It's a good spot for lovers, too."

By L. A. FARRELL:

GEORGIA'S county unit vote system is the most peculiar in the United States. This is the only state where the county unit system obtains.

No one seems to know just how it got started. A nestor of democracy in the state said a few days ago that its history is "veiled in antiquity."

Years ago, prior to the direct primary elections for United States senator and governor, the Democratic nominees for governor were chosen in state conventions. The United States senators were chosen by the general assembly.

In those days it took all summer to choose the gubernatorial nominee. Now it takes nearly all summer, considering the campaigning, but the result is determined in one day's halloting.

when the convention system was in vogue, each county had a mass meeting at the courthouse to determine which candidate would get the convention delegates from that county. These courthouse mass meetings started late in March or early in April. One north Georgia county would have a convention one day and a south Georgia county would meet the next day. The candidates tried to keep up with the county conventions and it kept them busy. There were no paved roads and no radio. They had only personal appearances and newspapers.

Sometimes along about July one candidate might have received the delegates of 30 or 40 counties while another had only two or three counties. When the lagging candidate found himself in such shape he often conceded the election to his opponent. Then when the remaining county conventions were held the voters didn't consider the governor's race. If such an event occurred in a state house office race that race was dropped from consideration.

gates from the various counties voted as their county mass meetings had instructed them.

Then as now the general election in November was a mere formality.

At these county conventions as long back as the oldest Democrat can remember it was the custom to allow each county two convention delegates for every representative the county had in the lower house. The custom still prevails on the county unit vote. There are 205 members of the house and 410 county unit votes.

The county unit vote really came into vogue in the early days of Tom Watson, in the nineties. Watson was a strong champion of the county unit system, modeled after the federal electoral vote system and designed to "protect the country counties from the city counties."

The county unit vote system became a major issue in the 1908 governorship campaign between Governor Hoke Smith and Joe Brown, with Watson and the county unit sponsors backing Brown. Brown won and from that day until this the county unit plan has not been challenged.

Only in few instances have candidates receiving the largest popular vote failed to obtain the largest county unit vote and these instances were in minor races. In several instances, however, because of the county unit system candidates for major office, with two or more opponents, have received the majority of the county unit vote but failed to obtain a popular vote majority. This was exemplified in the 1932 gubernatorial race when Eugene Talmadge first was elected to that high office. Talmadge polled only 116,000 of nearly 280,000 popular votes cast but his vote was so distributed that he obtained 265 of the possible 410 county unit votes. Thus it can be seen that with less than 40 per cent of the popular vote in his column Talmadge got more than 65 per cent of the unit vote.

To Justice?

By PETER LEVINS.

Comely Velma Patterson might never have been suspected of murder if she had not gone on a date the night her second daughter lay dying.

That Velma should have done such a thing-referring to the date-did not altogether surprise those acquainted with her somewhat lurid career. Once a reigning beauty of the region in and about Commerce. Texas, she had taken three husbands in her 34 years, and had won the title of liquor queen of Hunt county, as well as the envi "Voluptuous Velma." well as the enviable nickname,

Her first marriage, at 15, was to William McCasland, 19-year-old farmer's boy. That was in 1917. They had three children—Junior, Dorothy Leon and Bille Fae (a girl), in the order mand Them McCast. in the order named. Then McCas-land got a year in prison in 1928 for transporting corn liquor, and a like sentence in 1929. It developed later that Velma, desiring a divorce, had supplied police with the necessary

McCasland's incarceration gave the brunette wife legal grounds under Texas law—and soon she became the bride of one R. L. Kelly. After they had lived together for two years Kelly was caught transporting a load of illicit whisky from Oklahoma, being arrested at Paris, Texas. It was perhaps significant that Velma was spreading the news of his arrest even before it occurred. She informed folks in Commerce of the arrest during the afternoon. Kelly, however, had been delayed en route, and was not seized until that

Mrs. Kelly again utilized the law to get herself a divorce, and a new mate. Number 3 was Bill Patterson, who died on August 17, 1935, of what was described as an intestinal ailment. The sorrowing widow thought it must have been a recurrence of an old rupture, a strangulated hernia which he believed had been cured.

With the insurance money-$1,300 -Mrs. Patterson bought a modest frame cottage on the outskirts of According to reports, she operated a lucrative liquor trade, and her home became the pleasure resort and rendezvous of the section hands and other denim laborers of the bustling railroad town. Voluptuous Velma, 'twas said, presided at many a nocturnal revel.

The two young daughters died within a few weeks of each other early in 1936. Billie Fae, 10, became ill Saturday night, January 4, and died at about 11 p. m. Tuesday, January 7. Dr. L. T. Waller, a country practitioner for 30 years, attributed death to intestinal influenza.

Dorothy Leon, 12, became ill on February 10 in almost exactly the same manner and died a week later. Dr. Waller treated her during her illness, but his son, Dr. Alvin Waller, was with her when she died. The younger physician expressed doubt as to the cause of death, but, following the diagnosis of his father, also attributed it to intestinal influenza. Funeral arrangements were under way when a bit of neighborhood gossip reached the ears of Dennis D. Hooten, city editor of a Commerce The information was that, on the night of February 17, while Dorothy lay dying and in the greatest Mrs. Patterson had left the house wearing a gay evening dress, and that she had kept a date with her current sweetheart.

Hooten checked on the tip. He talked with local druggists and learn ed that, shortly before the death of Billie Fae the mother had sent Dorothy to buy some rat poison containing arsenic. He learned, further, that when Billie seemed to be getting better, Mrs. Patterson summoned first husband and sent him to buy some arsenic crystals. The child had died the next day.

The newspaper found, also, that the mother had bought poison herself a Hooten informed Constable Clarence Adams of his findings and suspicions the morning of Dorothy's uneral. Adams notified Sheriff J. D. Newton, of Greenville, who ordered the funeral delayed two hours However, he needed a court order for a post mortem, so the burial had to proceed pending official permission.

The order was forthcoming from Justice of the Peace J. A. Wyatt, of Sulphur Springs on March 16, and the body of Billie Fae was disinterred from Pleasant Grove cemetery in Hopkins county

Dr. L. E. Lee, health officer of Hunt county, and Dr. Frank Long, health officer of Hopkins county, removed the vicera. It was sealed in a previously sterilized glass fruit jar and delivered to Dr. Landon

Moore, analytical chemist, in Dallas. Dr. Moore, a nationally-known expert, who taught President Franklin D. Roocevelt in Harvard, reported he found 2.76 grains of arsenic in the girl's vicera, indicating that as much as 10 grains had been taken. Some had reached the stomach, he said, in-dicating the poison had been administered over a length of time, probably in several doses. Two grains of arsenic, the chemist said, are sufficient to kill an adult person, and even less would be to a child. Billie Fae had taken enough, he said, to kill five healthy and mature persons. On Easter morning, March 24, the body of the other girl was exhumed, with similar results. Dr. Moore re-ported finding 2.2 grains of arsenic in the vicera of Dorothy Leon, in-dicating four grains present in the entire body and as much as nine grains taken in all.

Presented this and other information, the grand jury lost no time re-turning indictments. Mrs. Patterson, protesting her innocence, was held in the Hunt county jail in Greenville

Feeling ran high in the town which had long looked with provincial dis-favor on her activities. Leading citizens of Commerce made up a collection with which they hired Benton Morgan, a leading attorney of Greenville, to serve as special prosecutor.

The town became a hotbed of gossip. Sheriff Newton declared that if the evidence in the deaths of the two girls proved insufficient, he would have the body of Bill Patterson exhumed to see if it, too, contained traces of poison. Persons who witnessed Patterson's death described it as identical with the tortured ends of the two girls. At least five other cases where men had died in provocative circumstances after visiting Mrs. Patterson's cottage, one in her front yard, were recalled.

Farmers dropped their plows and housewives their chores to throng the courtroom of Judge Charles Berry on April 27, 1936, when Velma Patterson was brought to trial on the indictment charging her with the death of Dorothy Leon.

She was accompanied into the courtroom by her only surviving child, Junior McCasland, 15. The mother was dressed modishly in a gray tailored suit bought especially for the occasion. She wore a dark biue hat with a large buckle in front and a blue waist. Her skirt was split in accordance with the fashion, revealing her shapely legs.

The elder Dr. Waller, first witness, told of his first call to attend Dorothy, in the middle of February. She was suffering extreme nausea and running a temperature. He saw her twice more and each time she seemed to be getting better, he said. He was away and his son answered the call when she died two days later, February 17.
"If the child had remained in the condition you saw her last, would she have died in 48 hours?" he was asked. "I don't think so," the doctor answered.

He further stated in answer to prosecution questioning that death from intestinal influenza is "extremely rare" and that he did not now "exactly what did cause the child's death

His son told of the girl's last moments. He said there was a question in his mind at the time whether it was "intestinal flu or arsenic poison-

Two occasions when Mrs Patterson purchased poison were next related by Fane Larner, pharmacist. The first was January 4, 1935, before the death of Bill Patterson, when she bought a half ounce of arsenic at Wheeler's drug store. The second was on February 3, 1936, seven days before Dorothy Leon became ill. At that time, Larner said, Mrs. Patterson purchased 25 cents worth of "Rough on Rats.'

Mrs. Patterson was quoted by another witness as saying, on the morning Dorothy died, that there "wasn't any rat poison on the place."

This witness was Mrs. E. E. Le

a neighbor beauty shop. She testified Mrs. Patterson called her shortly before the girl died. The mother went into another room and was not with the girl during her last moments, she said. "I asked Mrs. Patterson if she had put out any rat poison." Mrs. Lemons "Mrs. Patterson was crying. She had her face in her hands, When I asked her that, she took her hands down, looked at me and then said: why?

Mrs. Lemons paused significantly between the "no" and the "why."

C. W. Ambrose, Greenville agent for an insurance company, testified Mrs. Patterson carried two insurance policies on the girl and realized $551 after her death. One of the policies was for $382 and was taken out October 11, 1926. The other was for $169 and was taken out January 30, 1933. The premiums were 10 and 5 cents a week, respectively, and Mrs. Patterson paid them, the agent said.

O. R. Odom, Commerce undertaker, testified the burial of Dorothy Leon cost $91. The girl was not embalmed,

The girl's father testified that he was present at her death. He said Mrs. Patterson came for him and told him that Dorothy Leon was asking

When he arrived, he testified, the child was "cold to the touch" but complained she was "on fire." She was cramping and vomiting and in terrible anguish, he said. The father said he stayed with her until Friday when she seemed much improved. He left, but on Saturday, Mrs. Patterson summoned him again. Dorothy had taken a sudden turn for the worse.

"About 1 a. m.," he testified, left for about 30 minutes to go to the store for some tobacco. The child was asleep and resting easily when I When I returned, she was awake and complaining.

McCasland said he started to "give her some rest medicine and she said she hoped I never would give her another dose like her mother gave her a little while ago.'

About 3 a. m., the girl was even corse. McCasland related. "She said she knew she was going to die but that she didn't much care, her stomach hurt so much."

McCasland said he asked Mrs. Patbut she suggested waiting until morning. The witness said Anne Cooper, Mrs. Patterson's maid and housekeeper, was present also and called the doctor about 10 a. m. The elder Waller was not in but his son promised to come "in an hour. The doctor did not arrive in that time, however, and the suffering little girl said, "The hour's up and there's no use of the doctor coming now,' McCasland testified . Dr. Waller arrived about 15 minutes before she

The Planets—Your Daily Guide By BERNICE DENTON PIERSON.

SEPTEMBER 11-SUNDAY: Advancement with or through others may be attained during the entire day, if you are willing to give and take co-operation. This should be a favorable period for travel, religion, communications. After 8:06 p. m. you may have to guard against a feeling of impatience that will cause you to say or do things that bring later

SEPTEMBER 12-MONDAY: During the morning hours and until 1:32 p. m. people seem to wear their feelings "on their shoulders." This may easily lead to hurt feelings, and especially in dealings with women. However, if you are desirous of receiving justice, this entire day is favorable for dealings with friends. Older people and dealings in land may bring heavier responsibilities, or you may meet obstacles in such transactions.

SEPTEMBER 13-TUESDAY: The morning hours and until 11:04 a. m. suggest that you hold a check on your nerves. Your tension may be used through attempting too much and thereby a feeling of fatigue may brought on. It will be easy to see things as you wish them to be, rather than as they are. LOVE COMES AGAIN LATER. By Berta Ruck. Dodd, Mead & Co., New York. 292 pp. $2.

Can love come again later? Here is a story that both asks and answers this question. The theme is quite different in that it chooses as leading character a woman in her forties, and this is not her first venture in love. Eve Tudor was so busy being as uccessful artist that she forgot she was a woman. When the unbelievable happened she tried at first to fight against it. Somehow it seemed indecent for a widow with grown children to think of falling in love; but as she grew accustomed to the idea she welcomed the exciting discovery that there was still a great deal of life to be lived. "Love Comes Again Later" is a book that will appeal to women readers as it is the kind of story that seems written especially for them, but it will prove to be good reading for who likes a story of romande.

MODERN MASTERS by Jerome Klein, M. A. Grosset & Dunlap, New York. 28 pp. plus reproductions (folio). $2.98.

The title of this survey of 19 century painting is somewhat misleading. One will not find here those modern masters whose canvases may be, and on occasion have been, hung up side down without affecting in any way their claims to greatness. The most recent works reproduced are those of the madcap geniuses, Van Gogh and Gauguin, whose claims to enduring fame are somewhat more solidly established than their status of modernity. The technical problems of reproductions are solved with a little less than complete success (chiefly, I think, due to the character of the paper) but the canvases are well chosen and the author's minute biographies contain a wealth of information admirably condensed.

REFUGEES, by Dorothy Thompson. Random House, New York. 125 pp.

An up-to-date and thoroughly reliable survey of the refugee problem throughout the world. The author's stature as a writer on this somber subject is very well established; her articles are pretty generally held to have inspired the recent meeting at Evian-les-Bains, called for the pose of formulating a policy toward the innocent victims of post-war readjustment. Such a policy is long overdue, and its realization, if any such results, will give to this author satisfaction of a sort which is very rarely achieved by any writer—the satisfaction of setting the world to rights. Not since the death of Dr. Nansen, great polar explorar and greater humanitarian, has the world known a more vocal and more cathan Dorothy Thompson. She prothe developments which have led to the present frightful chaos of nationalities, beginning with the White Russians and the Greeks from Asia Minor, and bringing the survey up to date with the current exodu of Austria. Her proposed solution of the problem is not, to this reader, altogether convincing-it rests on a foundation of monetary legerdemain, the merits of which are highly theoretical and which may have conse quences now difficult to foresee. But cannot be gainsaid that her plan has possibilities, and the problem has been repeatedly shown to be so difever improbable, that may lead to its solution are well worth considering. Names make news, but Mrs. Roosevelt has made news by simply telling in every day fashion, her various activities. Of course she has named, at various times in the book, members of her family, but for a woman in touch with the world's most important personalities she has mentioned a mere handful. By PETER LEVINS.

Comely Velma Patterson might never have been suspected of murder if she had not gone on a date the night her second daughter lay dying. That Velma should have done such a thing—referring to the date—did not altogether surprise those acquainted with her somewhat lurid career. Once a reigning beauty of the region in and about Commerce, Texas, she had taken three husbands her 34 years, and had won the title of liquor queen of Hunt county. well as the enviable nickname, "Voluptuous Velma."

Her first marriage, at 15, was to William McCasland, 19-year-old farmer's boy. That was in 1917. They had three children—Junior, Dorothy Leon and Bille Fae (a girl), in the order named. Then McCasland got a year in prison in 1928 for transporting corn liquor, and a like sentence in 1929. It developed later that Velma, desiring a divorce, had supplied police with the necessary information.

McCasland's incarceration gave the brunette wife legal grounds under Texas law-and soon she became the bride of one R. L. Kelly. After they had lived together for two years Kelly was caught transporting a load of illicit whisky from Oklahoma, being arrested at Paris, Texas. It was perhaps significant that Velma was spreading the news of his arrest even before it occurred.

She informed folks in Commerce of the arrest during the afternoon. Kelly, however, had been delayed en route, and was not seized until that

Mrs. Kelly again utilized the law to get herself a divorce, and a new mate. Number 3 was Bill Patterson, who died on August 17, 1935, of what was described as an intestinal ail-The sorrowing widow thought it must have been a recurrence of an old rupture, a strangulated hernia which he believed had been cured.

With the insurance money—$1,300—Mrs. Patterson bought a modest frame cottage on the outskirts of According to reports, she operated a lucrative liquor trade, and her home became the pleasure resort and rendezvous of the section hands and other denim laborers of the bustling railroad town. Voluptuous Velma, twas said, presided at many a noc-

The two young daughters died within a few weeks of each other early in 1936. Billie Fae, 10, became ill Saturday night, January 4, and died at about 11 p. m. Tuesday, January 7. Dr. L. T. Waller, a country practitioner for 30 years, attributed death to intestinal influenza.

Dorothy Leon, 12, became ill on February 10 in almost exactly the same manner and died a week later. Dr. Waller treated her during her illness, but his son, Dr. Alvin Waller, was with her when she died. The younger physician expressed doubt as to the cause of death, but, following the diagnosis of his father, also attributed it to intestinal influenza

Funeral arrangements were under way when a bit of neighborhood gosreached the ears of Dennis D. Hooten, city editor of a Commerce The information was that, on the night of February 17, while Dorothy lay dying and in the greatest pain, Mrs. Patterson had left the use wearing a gay evening dress, and that she had kept a date with her current sweetheart.

Hooten checked on the tip. He talked with local druggists and learned that, shortly before the death of Billie Fae the mother had sent Dorothy to buy some rat poison containwhen Billie seemed to be getting better, Mrs. Patterson summoned her first husband and sent him to buy some arsenic crystals. The child had died the next day.

The newspaper found, also, that the mother had bought poison herself a few days before the second daughter

Hooten informed Constable Clarence Adams of his findings and suspicions the morning of Dorothy's funeral. Adams notified Sheriff J. D. Newton, of Greenville, who ordered the funeral delayed two hours. However, he needed a court order for a post mortem, so the burial had to proceed pending official permission.

The order was forthcoming from Justice of the Peace J. A. Wyatt, of Sulphur Springs on March 16, and the body of Billie Fae was disinterred from Pleasant Grove cemetery in Hopkins county.

Dr. L. E. Lee, health officer of Hunt county, and Dr. Frank Long, health officer of Hopkins county, removed the vicera. It was sealed in a previously sterilized glass fruit jar Moore, analytical chemist, in Dallas,

Dr. Moore, a nationally-known expert, who taught President Franklin D. Roocevelt in Harvard, reported h found 2.76 grains of arsenic in the girl's vicera, indicating that as much as 10 grains had been taken. Some had reached the stomach, he said, indicating the poison had been admin-istered over a length of time, probably in several doses.

Two grains of arsenic, the chemist said, are sufficient to kill an adult person, and even less would be fatal a child. Billie Fae had taken enough, he said, to kill five healthy On Easter morning, March 24, the body of the other girl was exhumed, with similar results. Dr. Moore reported finding 2.2 grains of arsenic in the vicera of Dorothy Leon, indicating four grains present in the entire body and as much as nine grains taken in all.

Presented this and other information, the grand jury lost no time returning indictments. Mrs. Patterson, protesting her innocence, was held in the Hunt county jail in Greenville

Feeling ran high in the town which had long looked with provincial dis-favor on her activities. Leading citizens of Commerce made up a collection with which they hired Benton Morgan, a leading attorney of Greenville, to serve as special prosecutor.

The town became a hotbed of gossip. Sheriff Newton declared that if the evidence in the deaths of the two girls proved insufficient, he would have the body of Bill Patterson exhumed to see if it, too, contained traces of poison. Persons who wit-nessed Patterson's death described it as identical with the tortured ends of the two girls. At least five other cases where men had died in provocative circumstances after visiting Mrs. Patterson's cottage, one in her front yard, were recalled.

Farmers dropped their plows and housewives their chores to throng the courtroom of Judge Charles Berry on April 27, 1936, when Velma Patterson was brought to trial on the indictment charging her with the death of Dorothy Leon,

She was accompanied into the courtroom by her only surviving child, Junior McCasland, 15. The mother was dressed modishly in a gray tailored suit bought especially for the occasion. She wore a dark blue hat with a large buckle in front and a blue waist. Her skirt was split in accordance with the fashion, revealing her shapely legs.

The elder Dr. Waller, first witness, told of his first call to attend Dorothy, in the middle of February. She was suffering extreme nausea and running a temperature. He saw her twice more and each time she seemed to be getting better, he said. He was away and his son answered the call when she died two days later, February 17.

the child had remained in the condition you saw her last, would she have died in 48 hours?" he was asked.
"I don't think so," the doctor

He further stated in answer to prosecution questioning that death from intestinal influenza is "extremely rare" and that he did not now know "exactly what did cause the child's death.

His son told of the girl's last mo-ments. He said there was a question mind at the time whether it was "intestinal flu or arsenic poison-Two occasions when Mrs. Patterson purchased poison were next related by Fane Larner, pharmacist. The first was January 4, 1935, before the death of Bill Patterson, when she bought a half ounce of arsenic at Wheeler's drug store. The second was on February 3, 1936, seven days before Dorothy Leon became ill. At that time, Larner said, Mrs. Patterson purchased 25 cents worth of "Rough

"I asked Mrs. Patterson if she had put out any rat poison," Mrs. Lemons said. "Mrs. Patterson was crying. She had her face in her hands. When I asked her that, she took her hands down, looked at me and then said: . why?'

Mrs. Lemons paused significantly between the "no" and the "why."

C. W. Ambrose, Greenville agent for an insurance company, testified Mrs. Patterson carried two insurance policies on the girl and realized $551 after her death. One of the policies was for $382 and was taken out October 11, 1926. The other was for $169 and was taken out January 30, 1933. The premiums were 10 and 5 cents a week, respectively, and Mrs. Patterson paid them, the agent said.

O. R. Odom, Commerce undertaker, cost $91. The girl was not embalmed, The girl's father testified that he was present at her death. He said Mrs. Patterson came for him and told him that Dorothy Leon was asking

When he arrived, he testified, the child was "cold to the touch" but complained she was "on fire." was cramping and vomiting and in terrible anguish, he said. The father said he stayed with her until Friday when she seemed much improved. He left, but on Saturday, Mrs. Patterson summoned him again. Dorothy had taken a sudden turn for the worse.

'About 1 a, m.," he testified. "I left for about 30 minutes to go to the store for some tobacco. The child was asleep and resting easily when I left. When I returned, she was awake and complaining."

McCasland said he started to "give her some rest medicine and she said she hoped I never would give her another dose like her mother gave her a little while ago.' About 3 a. m., the girl was even worse. McCasland related. "She said she knew she was going to die but that she didn't much care, her

The doctor did not arrive in that time, however, and the suffering little girl said, "The hour's up and there's no use of the doctor coming now," McCasland testified . Dr. Waller arrived about 15 minutes before she in Pleasant Grove cemetery. Answering prosecution questions, he said Mrs. Patterson went because she was 'uneasy" and not "out of grief."

"She would go to the grave, look at it and say, 'Well, she hasn't been dug up yet,' and then would ask me if I thought she would be. She would also ask me if I thought she would collect the insurance money.'

The prosecutor asked if Mrs. Patterson had said anything to him about he financial condition. "She said she was broke and needed money," the witness replied. On cross-examination, McCasland admitted he had been to the penitentiary twice on liquor violation convictions. "Who sent you up?" asked District Attorney Henry Pharr.

"Velma," he replied without hesitation. McCasland also testified that on January 7, the morning before the death of the first daughter, he bought 25 cents worth of arsenic in a Commerce drug store at the defendant's

He further related what he apparently considered a threat and possibly an atempt by Mrs. Patterson to poison him. He said he felt ill and expressed the fear that he, too, might be taking intestinal flu. He quoted Velma as saying: "I know damn well you'll get it if you stay around here.

Joe Stone, Commerce pharmacist, corroborated the sale of arsenic to McCasland on January 7. A box of arsenic was found by officers in the Patterson home after the deaths of the girls, and it was introduced in court. The state claimed it was the arsenic purchased by McCasland at Velma's instruction.

The prosecution then introduced its "star witness," Anne Cooper, 21, a shapely, flaxen-haired servant girl who was present in the Patterson cot-tage when both girls died.

Miss Cooper, who had worked for Velma since October, 1935, threw a bombshell early in her testimony when she declared that Mrs. Patterson wanted her children out of the way so that she could marry a "wellto-do man she loved deeply."
"Mrs. Patterson said she was crazy about Jimmy Wallace and could get him if it weren't for her children." said the witness.

Wallace, she said, lived in Lone ak, a town near Commerce. She said Mrs. Patterson frequently went for him in her car and they went to dances together.

She further related that Wallace stayed at Mrs. Patterson's home from February 6 until February 11, the day after Dorothy Leon became ill. At one time, she testified, the little girl was vomiting in bed and she went into the other room, where, she said, she found "Velma and Jimmy Wallace in bed together.' Wallace, she related, first came to the Patterson home January 7 and several times thereafter. ruary 6, she said. Mrs. Patterson went Wallace and the next night they went to a dance at a Miss Carden's in Commerce. They went to Wolfe City to dances on other occasions, she said.

The afternoon of Sunday, February 10, Dorothy Leon had been to town. She, Wallace and Mrs. Patterson drove to Talco, Mrs. Cooper said. The little girl became ill about midnight. Mrs. Patterson took Wallace home on Monday and on Tuesday went after McCaslano. Dorothy's condition grew worse. She repeatedly asked for a doctor, but it was not until Wednesday that the mother called Dr. Waller.

The iwtness then went on to describe Dorothy's death on the 17th. The child was sleeping and resting well, she said, when McCasland left about 1 a. m. for some tobacco. "After he had gone, Mrs. Patterson got up and turned on the light and woke up Dorothy. She told her it was time to take her medicine. She gave Dorothy one capsule and when she her take another one. "When McCasland returned, Dorothy was worse. He started to give her some medicine, but she begged him not to give her any like her mother just gave her because it made her so sick."

Miss Cooper then said Dorothy turned to her mother and said:

The witness further confirmed the conversation between Mrs. Patterson and Mrs. Lemons. After Mrs. Lemons walked away, Miss Cooper related, Mrs. Patterson turned to her

Miss Cooper said she accompanied Mrs. Patterson to the Commerce drug store when she purchased the rat poison, Mrs. Patterson first asked for arsenic, she related, but the druggist

Just before that, she testified, they had been to a garage to see about Mrs. Patterson's car which had been damaged in a wreck, she said. When the repairman told how much the repairs would cost, Mrs. Patterson told him to "hold the car, I'm down and out right now, but I expect to be able to take it out in a few days."

The prosecution then introduced three reputable doctors who stated symptoms of Dorothy Leon's fatal illness indicated positively that she died of arsenical poisoning.

District Attorney Pharr asked each of the physicians—Dr. E. P. Goode, of Dallas, and Drs. W. E. Marlow and E. F. Wright, of Greenville-a hypothetical question in which he described the symptoms. Dr. Wright added that in his opinion there is po such disease as "intestinal flu." Each of the doctors also said that the arsenic content in bismuth, if any, would not in sufficient quantity to cause death. The defense sought to show that the girl had been given bismuth to settle her stomach, and that arsenic in the bismuth explained the presence of the deadly poison in the disinter-

The chemist, Dr. Moore, declared this theory impossible, and he also refuted another defense contention that the arsenic might have been absorbed into the body from the after burial. The defense tried to bring out that large quantities of arsenic had been spread in the cottonproducing vicinity to kill boll weevils Dr. Moore, testified, however, that the body could absorb arsenic from the soil only if the body was in direct contact with the ground, and even Furthered the innermost organs. Dr. Moore further testified he found not the slightest trace of bismuth in the girl's stomach and that bismuth, in the refined state such as used for medicinal purposes, contains no arsenic.

The judge explained that in a circumstantial case the death of the second child may be considered as a part of the proof of deliberate intent to murder. As the special prosecutor might be accidental, but two under almost identical circumstances justified suspicion.

Thus the jury was told also of the death of Billie Fae, and of the finding of arsenic in her body. Mrs. Patterson, maintaining her innocence with bland disregard for the courtroom proceedings, did not take the stand, but rested her defense after relatives and friends testified. They described her devotion to her children and told of her efforts to give them a proper education.

Instrumental in the success of this writer's "Northern Summer," upon which he extends in "Strovik: Another Northern Summer," is his abil-ity to write of happy peasant people dwelling in an almost idyllic state of happiness. Nothing important happens in "Strovik." Without the author's personality in constant play, the story of this Norwegian family might be merely 200 pages, or there-abouts, of dull, prosaic type. LOVE COMES AGAIN LATER. Berta Ruck. Dodd, Mead & Co., New York. 292 pp. $2.

Can love come again later? Here is a story that both asks and answers this question. The theme is quite different in that it chooses as its leading character a woman in her forties, and this is not her first venture in love. Eve Tudor was so busy being as uccessful artist that she forgot she was a woman. When the unbelievable happened she tried at first to fight against it. Somehow it seemed indecent for a widow with grown children to think of falling in love; but as she grew accustomed to the idea she welcomed the exciting discovery that there was still a great deal of life to be lived. "Love Comes Again Later" is a book that will appeal to women readers as it is the kind of story that seems written especially for ther it will prove to be good reading for anyone who likes a story of romance and love. JESSE R. PETTY.

MODERN MASTERS by Jerome Klein, M. A. Grosset & Dunlap, New York. 28 pp. plus reproduc-tions (folio). $2.98.

The title of this survey of 19 century painting is somewhat misleading. One will not find here those modern masters whose canvases may be, and on occasion have been, hung up side down without affecting in any way their claims to great-ness. The most recent works repro-duced are those of the madcap geniuses, Van Gogh and Gauguin, whose claims to enduring fame are some-what more solidly established than their status of modernity. The technical problems of reproductions are solved with a little less than plete success (chiefly, I think, due the character of the paper) the canvases are well chosen and the author's minute biographies contain a wealth of information admirably

Troublesome Problem.

REFUGEES, by Dorothy Thompson. Random House, New York. 125 pp.

An up-to-date and thoroughly re-liable survey of the refugee problem throughout the world. The author's stature as a writer on this somber subject is very well established; her articles are pretty generally held to have inspired the recent meeting at Evian-les-Bains, called for the purpose of formulating a policy toward the innocent victims of post-war readjustment. Such a policy is long overdue, and its realization, if any such results, will give to this author satisfaction of a sort which is very rarely achieved by any writer—the satisfaction of setting the world to rights. Not since the death of Dr. Nansen, great polar explorer and greater humanitarian, has the world known a more vocal and more capable champion of exiled minorities than Dorothy Thompson. She pro-ceeds in this short volume to outline the developments which have led to the present frightful chaos of nationalities, beginning with the White Russians and the Greeks from Asia Minor, and bringing the survey up to date with the current exodus out of Austria. Her proposed solution the problem is not, to this reader, altogether convincing-it rests on a foundation of monetary legerdemain, the merits of which are highly theoretical and which may have consequences now difficult to foresee. But it cannot be gainsaid that her plan has possibilities, and the problem has been repeatedly shown to be so difficult that any possibilities, ever improbable, that may lead to its solution are well worth considering. Nothing, at any rate, could be worse

Mrs. Roosevelt's latest book, "My Days," is exactly what the title im-plies—a first-hand chronicle of every day in the life of the First Lady. To say the book is interesting would be rather mild, because what Mrs. Roosevelt has written is human interest history of our times in the present tense.

The writings are conspicuous, for one reason, because of the lack of names. Names make news, but Mrs. Roosevelt has made news by simply telling in every day fashion, her various activities. Of course she has named, at various times in the book, members of her family, but for a woman in touch with the world's most important personalities she has mentioned a mere handful. The fact that she has not has made the book better reading for all times. In it she has presented a personal testament of a practical philosophy of living. She jumps from Washington to Hyde

It is a fast-moving, easy-reading and interesting account of life and thoughts-especially during the early part of her writings. "Saturday morning was one of those hideous mornings which I suppose must go with any inauguration. All the photographers wanted to know what I was going to wear on Wednesday. They were all set up in groups on the lower floor of the White House and I progressed from one to the other. My only consolation was that there would never be for us another inauguration; that this was really the last time anywhere that I will ever have to have a posed picture taken." An interesting introduction to "My Days" is given by Mrs. Malvina Thompson Scheider, secretary to the charming first lady, who has carved an entirely new and unusual niche in the billboard of White House hostesses. The soft-speaking Mrs. Scheider, who accompanies Mrs. Roosevelt on all her trips and who "crashes" the column more than anyone, excepting the author's family, says in part:

"While this volume naturally cannot encompass all of Mrs. Roosevelt's activities, it does give an accurate and comprehensive picture of her daily life and interests. As Mrs. Roosevelt has written every word of this, as well as everything else which appears over her name, I feel like the "manual" mother because I do all the machine work.'

Everybody should read "My Days." Mrs. Roosevelt is a pattern to follow; she is the guiding spirit of feminine America and as a confidante of the nation she heads the list.

THE HISTORICAL NIGHTS' ENTERTAINMENT, by Rafael Sabatini. Houghton-Mifflin Company, Boston. $2.50.

Here are strange tales from history retold with the same vividness and absorbing interest that have made historical romances popular. keeping narrowly to the facts, Sabatini presents with all the liveliness of fiction a selection of dramatic or bizarre episodes of actual history. This series is largely a portrait gallery of such famous women as Catherine of Russia, Catherine de' Medici, Christine of Sweden, Maria-Theresa and Elizabeth of England. These are stories of a period in history when kings "could do no wrong," and it was treason for queens to emulate the indiscretions of their lords and masters.

Particularly interesting is the sad story of pitiful Lady Jane Grey, the nine-day queen of England—pawn in a political coup that went wrong and cost the innocent young lady her tory, but when livened by the nov-elistic touch they absorb facts along with the indiscretions of royalty and Short Stories.

EMILY. By Sally Benson. Convici-Friede, New York. 225 pp. $2.00. A collection of short stories, culled from the files of the New Yorker and Scribner's. Stories of the typical New Yorker style of architecture, deft, facile, sometimes flavored with vitrioi, and with their message neat-tucked away between the lines. overwhelmingly realistic. Sometimes though rarely, they acquire a greater stature—as does, for instance, the character who gives her name to the collection. There must be a million Emilys in the world, and never have they been better portrayed. To those who like their stories sophisticated and do not insist on a happy ending, this small volume is heartily recommended. OLE H. LEXAU.

"My finest grades of tobacco last year went to Camel," says John T. Bone, who adds: "Camel gets the best tobacco at most every warehouse sale. You bet I smoke Camels. Most planters who know tobacco prefer Camels too."

Planter Leon Mullen describes
